Ship Inquiry Set Up

LONDON (UPI) — The Labor government today set up a special court of inquiry to study merchant seamen's working conditions in an effort to halt the crippling 11-day-old maritime strike.

Labor Minister Ray Gunter told Parliament the court of inquiry, headed by Lord Pearson, will begin work immediately. Both employers and the National Union of Seamen (NUS) promised full co-operation.

Gunter's statement came a few hours after he met leaders of both sides in separate, private sessions.

He said the court's terms of reference included an inquiry into the immediate causes of the dispute; terms and conditions of service of seamen, taking into account the national interest; and relations between shipowners, officers and seamen.

Stern Warning Issued

LONDON (AP) — James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, stepped into the British seamen's strike today with a stern warning of the economic consequences.

Callaghan, speaking in the Commons, said the strike is setting back the time when Britain will be able to end its balance-of-payments deficit.

"I say to this house and to those engaged in the dispute that high wage increases in 1966 mean nothing but inflation."

"Hardly a day passes when I do not get advice that I should so manipulate the economy as to create widespread inflation and therefore unemployment."

Callaghan was referring to the governments' price-and-income policy which seeks to peg wage increases to a maximum of three per cent.

The Trades Union Congress tried Wednesday without success to settle the dispute, which had made idle 558 ships and 16,132 men.

George Woodcock, general secretary of the congress, predicted the stoppage would last another month.

"By then," he said, "the situation will be very serious."

The 65,000-member National Union of Seamen is striking for a 40-hour week package deal which amounts to a 17-per-cent increase on the current basic wage of £15 ($45) for a 56-hour week.

Seaway Tieup Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) said today the union will urge its 1,200 seaway workers to reject a federal conciliation board report and go on strike.

The report issued Wednesday night recommends an immediate seven per cent wage increase and a further seven per cent next year.

JAPAN EYEING ALBERTA OIL

TOKYO (Reuters) — Alberta oil may some day flow to the vast Japanese market as an alternative to present supplies from the Middle East, Russell Patrick, Alberta's industries and development minister, said here tonight.

"Japanese interest is high in co-operating with development of Alberta resources," the minister said.

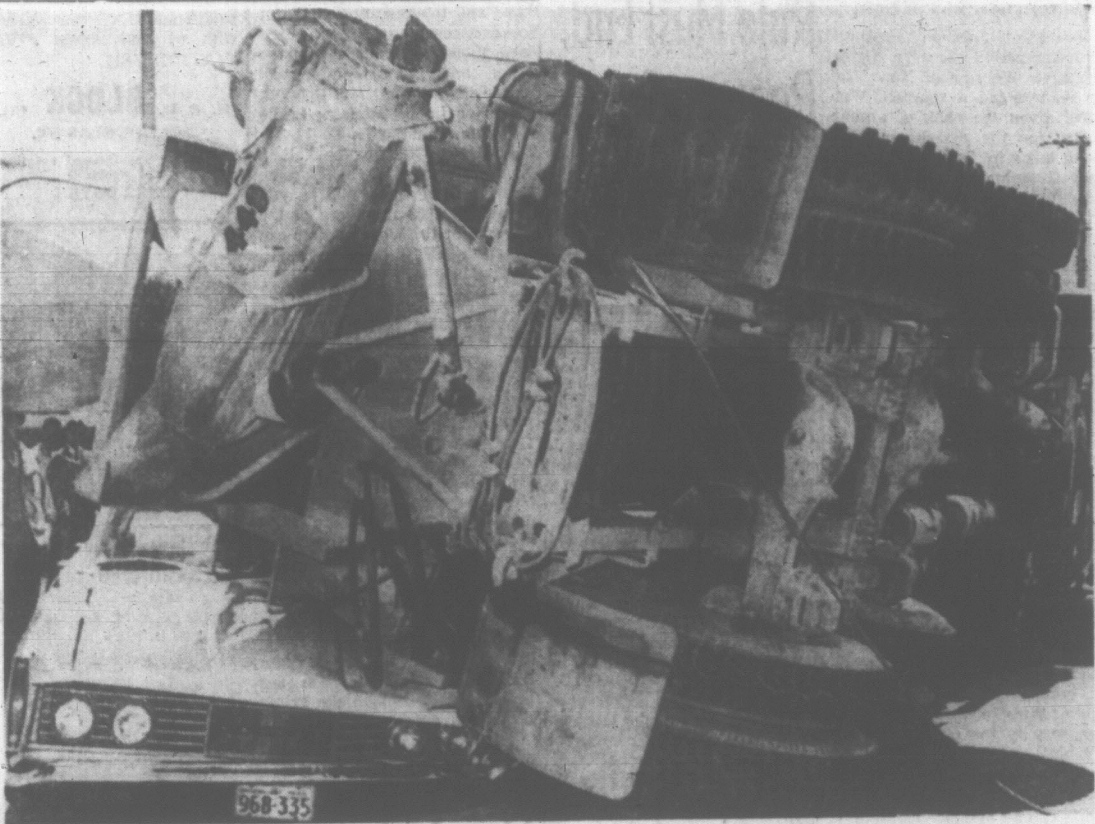

"Should joint schemes come into being, Japan could become a big market for our oil."

"It may become an alternative to the present supplies from the Middle East."

Patrick, a co-ordinator of the Alberta-Japan oil project, said the project is in the early stages.

Aussie Students Protest Viet War

ADELAIDE, Australia (Reuters) — About 100 university students stormed the state headquarters of the ruling Liberal and Country parties here today in protest against the Viet Nam War. The demonstration, which blocked the entrance to the headquarters for an hour despite police appeals, also marked the death of the first Australian conscript in Viet Nam.

MINOR CUTS from flying glass were the only injuries suffered today by Mrs. M. F. Doan of London, Ont., when an empty 12-ton cement truck,

Ky Moves in Troops As U.S. Library Burned

First to Arrive In City of Hue

HUE, South Viet Nam (CP) — A battalion of South Vietnamese army troops moved into Hue tonight to protect the U.S. consulate and three other American buildings in the city.

The battalion of 500 government troops carried full battle gear when they arrived in Hue aboard army trucks.

There had been no government troops in Hue, where anti-American demonstrators attacked the U.S. information service office earlier in the day, set fire to the building and burned books, shelves and tables. The building was closed and no Americans were injured.

About 40 students broke into the building and carried books, desks, chairs and tables outside and set fire to them.

Then they went back inside the modern, two-story building and burned everything they could see before moving on to a large American movie auditorium, where they set fire to the curtains.

DIDN'T INTERFERE

About 30 policemen standing outside made no attempt to stop the attack. Firemen called to the scene about 40 minutes after the fires began also made no attempt to quell the flames. They confined their efforts to preventing the fires from spreading to neighboring buildings.

Both firemen and police said they were prevented from interfering in the raid by members of Hue "struggle force."

The move began when 1,000 students marched through the city after a meeting at Hue University's science faculty auditorium.

As they reached the building about 100 of them formed up in a column, but were restrained from advancing on the building by their leaders, one of whom wore a .45-calibre pistol on his hip.

Some of the marchers then broke away and stormed into the building.

The pilot of the machine, Dennis Light of Coquitlam, was missing.

Witnesses said the Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. machine was flying over Seton Lake when it hit the 5,000-foot-long line that feeds power from the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority plant at Bridge River, a few miles to the south.

Power outages were reported as far north as Prince George. Hydro spokesmen said it was not known when normal service would be restored.

But Williams Lake residents, fed by the line, said normal power was restored within about 1 1/2 hours.

Witnesses said the pilot of the machine had just landed a passenger. He took off again and dipped suddenly, cut the wire, and fell into the lake. The broken line fell across the tracks of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway but was quickly moved.

The machine was reported to be lying upside down in the lake. The helicopter was being used by hydro for various line work. Two more helicopters were at the scene.

Communities fed by the line switched to emergency power where it was available. Prince George, the largest city north of Vancouver, use power-operated generators which satisfied about half the requirements of the city.

The Canadian National Telegraphs reported service was interrupted by the outage. But normal service was restored shortly.

146 KILLED DURING WEEK

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. military spokesmen announced today 146 Americans were killed in action and 820 wounded last week, the highest Viet Nam casualty toll since the bloody Ia Drang Valley campaign six months ago.

the library through the main door as others stoned the building's plate-glass windows.

The incident lasted about 40 minutes and was watched by a crowd in the wide street outside.

Students scrawled a painted message on the sidewalk reading: "We strongly protest U.S. policy of supporting (Head of State) Nguyen Van Thieu and (Premier) Ky."

Reliable sources said they saw the militant Buddhist leader the Venerable Tri Quang in the crowd outside the building. The powerful monk, whose headquarters are in Hue, later broadcast an appeal over Hue radio asking Buddhists to go home.

Buu Ton, 23-year-old leader of the anti-government student "struggle committee," said afterward he thought the attack would force President Johnson to change his Viet Nam policy.

In Saigon U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge called the sacking a "distressing act."

"The destruction of a library and cultural centre is a distressing act," he said in a statement.

"We do not believe this violent action represents the views of the Vietnamese people as a whole."

Big Baskets Foil U.S. Bomb Raids

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese reporters travelling in South Viet Nam said today the Americans cannot disrupt the Viet Cong supply lines despite repeated bombings.

The New China news agency quoted them as saying: "Arms, ammunition and food supplies are being brought to the troops in the field day and night in big baskets on human backs along mountain trails, on bicycles, in ox-carts or captured trucks along jungle paths, or in junks through the cobweb of reefs."

BLIND, SEEING EYE DOG WALKING PICKET LINE

TORONTO (UPI) — Twenty-five blind broom-makers and a seeing-eye dog formed a picket line today in a strike for higher wages at the Canadian National Institute for the Blind's broom plant.

The men were demanding pay raises because of the rising cost of living. Piece workers at the CNIB plant make an average of $65 a week while hourly workers are paid $48 to $52 a week.

George Little, a spokesman for the strikers, pointed out one hourly-rated employee makes only $44 a week and must support a wife and a child.

The CNIB said raises were impossible at this time, but said increases could occur in December because of planned efficiency improvements.

Convicts Escape As Feathers Fly

FORTSMOUTH, England (Reuters) — Police scoured the south of England today for five dangerous convicts who escaped from a police bus Wednesday.

Nine convicts overpowered guards and broke free while being driven from a court hearing in nearby Winchester to top-security Parkhurst prison on the Isle of Wight. Four were recaptured Wednesday night.

The home office said that as 13 prisoners were being driven from Winchester to Parkhurst one of the men suddenly shouted "right" and the men attacked and overpowered six prison guards.

The nine, some of them handcuffed together, dashed from the bus.

One witness said they crashed through a hedge, knocked over a chicken coop, then dashed appeared in a flurry of feathers and squawking chickens.

WERE IN CIVIES
The men were wearing civilian clothes for their court appearance. They testified in a case in which one prisoner was charged with wounding another.

The fugitives were serving sentences ranging from five to 10 years for crimes including shooting, robbery with violence and assault.

Two RAF helicopters soon began swooping low over woods and fields in the area.

Two were captured after being chased by policemen and a 19-year-old mechanic through fields and over farm fences. At one point, the youth hit one of the fleeing men with a brick.

ROME (AP) — Swimming was banned along some of Rome's beaches today because of pollution from the damaged Belgian tanker Fina Norge. The tanker's hull was ripped on shoals of Bizerte, Tunisia, May 17.

HUNDRED MILLION FOR RELIEF

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is putting almost $100,000,000 worth of earthquake relief into the stricken central Asian city of Tashkent, Tass reported today. The news agency disclosed its first total figures on the relief program, a month after the first severe quake struck Tashkent. Two other quakes hit the city of 1,000,000 persons May 10 and May 24.

The Canadian National Telegraphs reported service was interrupted by the outage. But normal service was restored shortly.

Two men died here Tuesday when they were experimenting with the possibility of working on a 250-foot radio tower with another Okanagan helicopter.

Witnesses said the pilot of the machine had just landed a passenger. He took off again and dipped suddenly, cut the wire, and fell into the lake. The broken line fell across the tracks of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway but was quickly moved.

The machine was reported to be lying upside down in the lake. The helicopter was being used by hydro for various line work. Two more helicopters were at the scene.

Rhodesian Rail Order Death-Blow to Zambia

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — An order by white-supremacist Rhodesia that its landlocked neighbor, Zambia, must pay in advance and in hard cash for rail traffic through the break-away British colony went into effect Wednesday. The move threatened Zambia, major copper producer and exporter, with economic paralysis.

The railway system is jointly owned by Zambia and Rhodesia, which declared independence of Britain last Nov. 11 in a crisis over British insistence on eventual rule by the colony's overwhelming African majority.

President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia has said a case was being prepared for submission to the International Court at The Hague.

Guyana Rivals Weep, Embrace

GEORGETOWN (AP)—Floodlights lit up the midnight sky Wednesday night and 50,000 Guyanese cheered as the five-colored flag of Guyana went up in place of the Union Jack, signalling independence for another British colony.

Prime Minister Forbes Burnham wept as the red, white, black, gold and green flag was hoisted.

Former prime minister Cheddi Jagan, Marxist opponent of Burnham, appeared at the ceremony and to general surprise embraced his successor.

Jagan and his people's progressive party are boycotting all ceremonies aside from the flag-raising and the opening of the first independent Parliament.

His Chicago-born wife, Janet, refused to attend the ceremony Wednesday night.

JAM THE STREETS

Georgetown, which appeared sleepy earlier this week, came alive with thousands jamming the streets, dancing, cheering and drinking rum. The holiday was expected to run through the weekend and Monday, which is a religious day.

Flag-raising ceremonies took place simultaneously in every town and village of the new nation on the northern coast of South America. They marked the end of 35 years of British, Dutch and French rule.

Guyana becomes the 23rd member of the British Commonwealth. The Duke and Duchess of Kent represented the Queen at the ceremony in Georgetown.

The crowd at the flag-raising was overwhelmingly Negro, reflecting the boycott of Jagan's PPP, the party of the Guyanese of East Indian origin. The party is protesting the continuation of the state of emergency proclaimed during inter-racial strife two years ago and the constitution which Jagan claims is rigged against him.

The main part of the population of 750,000 is made up of 220,000 East Indians, 175,000 Negroes and 30,000 American Indians.

HAD BRITISH BACKING

Burnham came to power with British backing in December, 1964, after at least 137 persons were killed in months of violence between East Indians and Negroes.

With unemployment at 16 per cent of the labor force, the government has initiated a road building program and is trying to get a consortium of the Canadian, American and West German governments to guarantee a World Bank loan of $170,000,000 for a development plan.

The new country's main source of revenue is bauxite, which is the highest grade in the world. A subsidiary of the Aluminum Co. of Canada produces more than 2,000,000 tons of bauxite and byproducts a year.

It also has manganese and diamonds, and recent surveys have found traces of copper, nickel, molybdenum and other metals.

Guyana also produces 164,000 tons of rice and 305,000 tons of sugar annually.

His government has refused to accept the Rhodesian payment regulation.

The first result showed today when Zambia's copper-mining companies said copper no longer is being shipped by rail through Rhodesia for export and they might be unable to keep to contract terms.

The two mining companies, Roen Selection Trust and Anglo American, officially declared force majeure—a legal provision in their contracts with consumers.

The railway is the main outlet for the bulk of Zambia's copper.

Top Herd for Sale

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's best-known Hereford herd, owned by H. N. Boulton of Langley, will be sold Friday at the Pacific National Exhibition grounds. The 110-head herd, rated one of the best in North America, is expected to bring more than $100,000.

'Diplomatic Glacier'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Frank Church of the Senate foreign relations committee Wednesday called for a summit meeting between President Johnson and French President de Gaulle to help melt "a diplomatic glacier" he said separates the two countries. The Idaho Democrat also urged appointment of a European general as supreme Allied commander in Europe, but leaving control of nuclear weapons with the U.S. president.

Operators Free To Set Own Gas Price

A number of Victoria service station operators have raised the price of gasoline one cent a gallon since going off consignment sales contracts.

One dealer estimated nearly 100 per cent of Victoria dealers had dropped consignment selling since alternative financing was offered by the major oil companies last fall.

As a result, the local dealer has been free to set his own gasoline price, and many have boosted the price of regular gas from 41.9 to 42.9 cents a gallon.

KEEP SAME PRICE

Some dealers contacted today were surprised that others had altered the retail price and could see no immediate prospect of doing likewise themselves.

"Not unless the competition warrants," one man said. "I can't see it as long as most are down."

But at the same time the dealers expressed the desire to regain the profit margin they had before a gasoline price war three years ago.

At that time the margin was 8½ cents per gallon, and when the smoke cleared this was dropped to seven cents, mostly through oil company guarantee as a result of consignment contracts.

SET MARGIN

Consignment meant that no matter what happened to the price of gasoline at the retail level, the oil companies paid a set margin to dealers and retained ownership of the gasoline until the dealers were able to pay for it. That entitled the companies to set the retail price.

The consignment policy has since been abandoned and the action was backed by the Morrow royal commission investigating gas prices.

An Imperial Esso spokesman said an estimated 50 per cent of dealers in the Victoria area had gone off consignment.

The spokesman and local Esso dealers denied a suggestion that prices were boosted to cover the cost of running a promotional contest.

They agreed the contest was costing a nominal one-cent per card issued with each gasoline purchase, which is no more than routine promotional expense.

PROFIT BOOSTED

A Shell Oil contest was costing dealers five times as much for each contest envelope issued to purchasers.

But a Shell dealer said his increased sales had boosted his monthly profit by about $200.

Any increase in the price of gasoline could not be attributed to the contest, he felt. It was a direct result of dealer independence through going off consignment.

The contest was being used as a scapegoat, he felt. "I don't think contests are necessary," said another dealer. "They cost either John Public or the dealer."

MARKUP WIPED OUT

"We found we had people coming in to buy as little as a gallon of gasoline and demanding a contest envelope. The five cents this envelope cost us almost entirely wiped out our markup on the sale. It was killing us."

A Shell Oil spokesman said most dealers had found it to their advantage to enter the contest promotion, which is voluntary.

If they found it a burden they could withdraw, he said.

U.S. Lawyer To Mediate Dispute

BELIZE, British Honduras (Reuters)—An internationally-known American lawyer is trying to mediate one of the oldest controversies in the western hemisphere—the future of British Honduras.

At a London conference last year, Britain and Guatemala, the neighboring Central American republic, finally agreed to ask the United States to mediate their territorial dispute.

President Johnson appointed international lawyer Matthew Webster of New York to recommend a solution. Webster, given the rank of ambassador for the assignment, held talks in British Honduras and Guatemala to prepare his recommendations.

Guatemala claims the entire territory of British Honduras on grounds of being the logical heir to the old Spanish jurisdiction.

BASED ON TREATY

The Guatemalan claim is based on a treaty signed on April 13, 1859 by Britain and Guatemala and duly ratified by both sides. Under this treaty Guatemala accepted the existing frontiers between its territory and British Honduras.

One article in the treaty stipulated that "both sides would do all in their power to make communications easier between the most appropriate place on the Atlantic coast in the proximities of Belize and the capital of Guatemala."

It also defined the boundaries of both countries so that possible future intrusions from one territory to the other would be avoided.

This article is the cause of the present dispute between Britain and Guatemala. Guatemala claims it was included in the treaty as compensation for the supposed extension of Belize to the south. The article was never implemented and it is for this reason that Guatemala now claims not only the southern half of the territory but the entire country.

Britain rejects this theory and maintains that those territories which declared themselves independent could only claim the territory which they occupied at the time of their declaration of independence from Spain. Guatemala became independent in 1821.

White Minority Rule Must End, Pearson Says

MONTREAL (CP)—Commonwealth survival depends on the death of white supremacy in Rhodesia, Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday night. Members in Africa and Asia would not stand for anything less than an early change to majority rule by native Rhodesians.

"White minority rule is not now acceptable on any continent," the prime minister told the Montreal branch of the Royal Commonwealth Society.

"If there is not an answer to satisfy all members, the association is not likely to remain a multiracial commonwealth."

Mr. Pearson, who was speaking on Commonwealth Day, conceded that economic sanctions against the Ian Smith regime in Rhodesia have not worked as quickly as expected.

"There have been leaks, especially oil leaks," he said.

But the sanctions had been effective enough to spur talks between Rhodesia and Britain, "an encouraging development," and use of force or compulsory sanctions would be a "great mistake."

Such steps would drive together Rhodesia and South Africa and probably bring bloodshed.

New Westminster Group Entertains Silver Threads

Victoria Silver Threads were entertained Wednesday afternoon by the 40-voice Century House Glee Club from New Westminster.

All the choristers are old-age pensioners of 65 years and over, but their singing was vigorous and inspiring and drew loud applause from an audience of around 300.

"This is our last concert of the season," said MC Don Gray. "but we shall continue our Wednesday afternoon sing-song every Wednesday until the end of June."

Mr. Gray expressed thanks to Arthur H. Hickford, deputy MC at the weekly concerts.

The Silver Threads choir, directed by Mrs. Dorothy Cuthbert, will present Songs of the British Isles in the McPherson Theatre Friday at 2 p.m.

WAC Warns Against Bargaining Too Hard

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier W. A. C. Bennett has appealed for restraint in a series of bitter labor-management battles which he says are threatening to "take the bloom off the boom" in British Columbia.

The premier's warning in Prince George Wednesday follows reports from provincial government sources that many public projects will be curtailed if the province is crippled by major strikes this year.

"If either side bargains too hard and the resulting strike or lockout costs many men their jobs, then the people will blame them, and I as premier will blame them," said Mr. Bennett.

Earlier Labor Minister Leslie Peterson announced appointment of Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz of the B.C. Supreme Court to investigate the dispute between 28,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) and 120 timber companies.

ARRANGE MEETINGS

Mr. Justice Nemetz said he will arrange for meetings between IWA representatives and officials of Forest Industrial Relations, bargainers for the employers, as soon as possible.

In other B.C. strikes, Vancouver's 1,500 striking outside workers plan to discuss their 20-day-old walkout at a meeting Sunday, but there appears little hope of dissolving the battle lines between the Civic Employees Union (Outside Workers) and city council.

What started as a thin film of dust and debris on Vancouver streets a week ago has reached drifting proportions when sea breezes waft through the grimy downtown area.

The outside workers want a 70-cent-an-hour raise over three years on their basic minimum of $2.28. They have rejected a city offer of 28½ cents over two years.

In suburban North Vancouver, representatives of 700 striking outside and inside workers reached an impasse with civic officials.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A little more than one inch of rain was recorded in the twelve hours ending at 5 this morning at both Estevan Point and Spring Island. Other coastal areas and the northern Interior were cloudy overnight but the southern Interior was mainly clear.

It was warm in the Okanagan and Kootenay districts again today. Showers and cooler temperatures though will follow a Pacific disturbance that crossed the southern mainland this morning and the southern Interior this evening. A high pressure area building over the coast behind this system will produce partial clearing Friday morning.

MP Links WW Plan, Suicides

OTTAWA (CP) — The winter works program and "seven suicidal hangings" were linked in the Commons Wednesday as Raymond Langlois (Creditiste-Magantic) called for an RCMP inquiry into the way the Quebec municipality of Notre-Dame-de-la-Grande has been spending federal money.

He said that within a year and a half there had been seven suicidal hangings in the municipality. "There is something wrong there and if the provincial government doesn't look into it the RCMP should."

Quebec is the only province that doesn't allow federal auditors to look into records of winter works spending. Ottawa contributes from 50 to 60 per cent of payroll costs.

Mr. Langlois said $194,000 has been spent in the community "without anything to show for it."

The community is in his riding about 75 miles southeast of Quebec City. The 1964 Quebec Municipal Guide lists the community of La Guadeloupe as having 1,860 residents.

Immigration Minister Marchand said in an interview the provinces administer the winter works program and he is uncertain whether a federal inquiry can be made. He had asked the Quebec government for a report.

Mr. Marchand said he had heard of up to nine suicides.

CHECKS ON SALARIES

Mr. Langlois said a provincial organization in Sherbrooke, Que., had tried to find out whether proper salaries were being paid under the program, designed to provide winter employment.

The organization, which he didn't name, got access to the books and found them "a complete mess" for the last three or four years. He said:

"People weren't being paid under the program, although their names were on payroll lists."

Or "they received cheques, endorsed them and sent them back, though they were not doing any work in connection with the projects. This has been going on for four years."

One condition of the federal-provincial agreement covering the winter works program is that federal officials be given access to provincial and municipal records dealing with the funds.

But the federal auditor-general, Maxwell Henderson, noted in his 1965 report that Quebec objected to this on the grounds its provincial auditor gave "extensive examination" to the records.

"As a result, we are not examining the records of the municipalities in this province," Mr. Henderson said.

OFFICER TESTIFIES AT INQUEST

Car Lurched; Gun Fired

... 'lost my balance'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A white policeman whose gun killed a Negro motorist after a 48-block chase testified Wednesday that his weapon discharged accidentally when he lost his balance.

Officer Jerold M. Bova, 23, told an inquest jury the car driven by the victim, Leonard Deadwyler, was moving slowly when Bova reached into the vehicle, trying to get Deadwyler to stop.

Suddenly, Bova said, the car lurched forward.

"This lurch caused me to lose my balance. . . . My feet were knocked out from under me, I recall instinctively making a grabbing motion with my hands in an attempt to regain my balance. At this time my service revolver unintentionally fired."

HE SAID NOTHING

Deadwyler, 25, was taking his pregnant wife, Barbara, to a hospital May 7 because she was having labor pains. She has testified Bova said nothing before the shot was fired.

Said Bova: "I shouted to the driver to stop the car."

A tape recording played for jurors quoted a witness, Gamal-yeel Ferguson, 31, as saying the shooting was the victim's "own fault."

"It was his own fault. I told him to stop, see, he didn't," said the taped statement of Ferguson, owner of the car and a passenger in the rear seat.

Officers said that, in his statement, Ferguson insisted he was drunk and did not see the shooting. Last Tuesday he testified police halted the car and shot Deadwyler without reason. The inquest continues.

President Robert Dye said no further action could be taken until seven days after the recommendations had been read by the minister of labor.

Agreement in General

NEWS REPORTS OF THE meetings between Prime Minister Wilson and Chancellor Erhard indicate that the two spokesmen were not able to do much more in their two-day London talks than agree to seek further agreement.

The vital question of German reunification was, of course, given official affirmation as essential to a just and lasting political settlement in Europe, and it is to be achieved on "the basis of the principle of self-determination." There is strong evidence that most of the Western powers support this objective more in word than in deed—that in reality the reunification of East and West Germany is a very low priority item in their political programs. And the West German government itself, while still taking the official stand that reunification must come as soon as possible, recognizes that the project is not a practicable one at this time.

On the reorganization of NATO, the two leaders called for firm decisions at next month's meeting in Brussels and an early clarification of France's position in the organization. With NATO's forces given eviction notices by General de Gaulle, and French troops withdrawn from the mutual defence group, there are indeed some firm decisions to be made.

What may well eventuate is the development of West Germany as the European pivot of the NATO system, in place of France. This would give Bonn added prestige and depreciate France's stock accordingly.

But President de Gaulle must have assessed this possibility in delivering his ultimatum to the NATO partners. His recent motions toward Russia and Red China suggest that he plans a new orientation and a new role for France in the European scheme of things. Improvement of East-West relations is also an objective recently espoused by West Germany, and Mr. Wilson gave full approval to Chancellor Erhard's efforts in this direction.

But on the crucial question of West German participation in NATO's nuclear armament there was no meeting of minds, and Britain's very pertinent problem of sustaining its defence forces in West Germany has had to be referred to a commission for further discussion.

There are many difficulties in the way of Western co-operation. But the overall fact of mutual advantage through mutual alliance is still the dominant consideration. The democratic West needs Germany, and vice versa. The other problems are subservient to this essential fact of life.

Keep the Target in Sight

THE DECISION OF THE Dominion Drama Festival authorities—taken a year ago—to limit western representation in the finals to one entry has aroused considerable criticism among those who feel that the west has suffered discrimination, since the region comprises British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

The festival officials argue that regional representation should be greatest where amateur theatrical activity is greatest. They point to the large number of theatre groups in Ontario and Quebec and give these two regions two finalists each. The Maritimes rate one entry in the finals, and this leaves only one for the four western provinces. Manitoba has dropped out of the competition for next year, Saskatchewan theatre is described as weak at this time, and it is pointed out that this in effect finds only British Columbia and Alberta competing for the single place.

The reason for limiting the national finals to six plays is given as a technical one. There are only six evenings in the week devoted to the finals. More entries would require a matinee performance—a financial risk to be avoided and an admitted handicap for the group scheduled for the afternoon presentation.

There is thus a recognizable syllogism in the festival decision. But there is a broader aspect also to be considered. The original idea of the Dominion Drama Festival was to enable all parts of the country to acquire a familiarity with what was being done in amateur theatre elsewhere. The method of achieving this took the form of annual competitions, working up from local to regional to national. The present arrangement thus achieves this ideal only in part—the interplay of nationwide provincial theatre activities is reduced to a minimum.

With little chance of gaining a place in the finals, western theatre groups may reduce this interaction still more by losing interest in the festival as at present constituted. They may direct their energies to strictly western competition and the theatre as a national Canadian entity will suffer.

Perhaps the time has come to accept the DDF as a necessarily restricted phenomenon and make it only one of several agencies for encouraging Canadian acting by augmenting alternative outlets. Traveling lecturers, local and regional workshops, touring groups where this is possible—these could give impetus and encouragement to amateur theatre all across the country. The DDF organization might evolve into a national effort divorced from regional representation and perhaps even from the competitive aspect, surviving as a display mechanism for good plays regardless of where in Canada they originate.

Of this we can be sure: ferment, stimulation, comparison are necessary if Canadian theatre is to advance. Isolationism, detachment, whether chosen or enforced, will most likely lead to stagnation.

The DDF concept is one of encouraging the regional theatrical activities of the nation, and familiarizing each with the others. This cannot be adequately accomplished if there is not the greatest possible cross-country mingling of groups.

What will stifle it most effectively is any suspicion in the West that the East is being discriminatory or exclusive. The restriction of western entries appears to be based mainly on technical difficulties. Surely these can be overcome if there is a real will to achieve the DDF objectives.

You Pay for What You Get

THE NEWS THAT SOME LOCAL gasoline stations have raised prices in order to help defray the costs of a promotional contest need come as no great surprise. It is simply an illustration of the fact that consumers who expect "something for nothing" are not being realistic.

There is a certain irony in the present situation since it reveals so clearly the self-defeating nature of most give-away gimmicks used in merchandising. The theory of the give-away is that it will attract so many new customers that the cost of the gimmick is absorbed by the extra revenue flow. This will work, of course, only so long as competitors for those same customers do not also join the give-away parade. If they do, then the benefit of volume sales is lost and inevitably prices have to be raised and the customer pays.

That this is true has been well illustrated in the field of trading stamps where studies have shown that prices of merchandise have had to be raised—to cover the cost of the stamps in all areas where merchants have competed with stamp offers for the consumers' favor. It may be in some cases that the consumers prefer to pay more for certain goods in order to take advantage of prize or premium offers, but there is no hiding the fact that they do pay more.

It's Time to End the Postwar Period

WE ARE seeing brisk activity in European affairs. It has been aroused by General de Gaulle's decision to evict the NATO military establishment from France, to withdraw the French troops in Germany from the integrated command, and by his impending visit to the Soviet Union. All this can be viewed as the beginning of a systematic campaign to abrogate American leadership in Europe and to reduce drastically American influence in European affairs.

General de Gaulle himself has frequently said that this is one of his purposes. But there is another way of viewing the situation, and it is, I believe, more realistic and it might lead to more constructive conclusions. It is that while General de Gaulle does indeed have the initiative today, he has it by default. He has the initiative by virtue of American inability and unreliability and unwillingness to exercise leadership in Europe, now that the postwar era is ending.

Only when we look at the situation in this perspective can we understand how France, which is not a very great power by contemporary standards, has such political predominance in the Western Alliance.

Central Purpose

The central purpose of the Gaullist enterprise is to make an opening to the east and to bring about a relief of tension, an increase of economic and cultural intercourse, and an end to the cold war between the Soviet Union and western Europe. The moral influence of General de Gaulle in Europe is far greater than France's military and economic power, and the reason for this is that the general has identified himself with what, for the rising generation of Europeans, is the wave of the future.

They do not like or agree with all of his ideas, his tactics or his manners, and there is very widespread opposition to a too-powerful France. But General de Gaulle is going in the direction in which the Europeans want to go, and which they believe is the way to peace in Europe, to expanding trade and prosperity, and to the elimination of the most dangerous situation in Europe—the partition of Germany.

Although American officials would in theory agree with most of these European aspirations, the American government is not, for a variety of reasons, identified with the European feeling that the time has come to bring the postwar era to an end. It is a fact that the men who have shaped and are shaping United States policy in Europe are the veterans, many of them the distinguished veterans, of the cold war. They do not speak convincingly to the rising generation of Europeans who have no memories of the World War and its aftermath. In many critical circumstances they cannot even speak with their contemporaries in western Europe.

Intellectual Default

This is an intellectual default which makes the United States unable to exercise leadership in Europe today. But there is another reason, a more obstinate reason, why American influence in Europe has fallen so low. It is that the Vietnamese war has made us unable to act in Europe by negotiating with the other great power, the Soviet Union. If it were not for the Vietnamese entanglement, more precisely if we were not attacking North Viet Nam, the United States could play its natural role of counterpart to the Soviet Union in the great negotiations which Europeans now desire.

We can be reasonably certain that without the United States playing the part which it ought to be playing, there can be no really far-reaching and permanent settlement of European problems. For that, the participation of the United States as well as the U.S.S.R. is necessary. But for the time being we are not really present in Europe and we are not able to talk with the Soviet Union.

Moral Changes

By failing to grasp the intellectual and moral changes that have come with the end of the postwar era and the departure of the war generations, we have shut down our communication with contemporary Europe. Because of our military preoccupation with southeast Asia we cannot fulfill our indispensable role in the European settlement, which is to be in the west the counterpart of the Soviet Union in the east. We have, moreover, confirmed by our actions, by the character and scope of our military deployment in southeast Asia, one of General de Gaulle's prime arguments, which is that the United States is no longer vitally interested in Europe, and that our vital interests now lie in the other continents.

How long it will take to bring the Vietnamese entanglement to an end, and how long it will take before our European policy is in the hands of new men with fresh minds, it is impossible to guess. But we can be certain that our political influence in Europe is greatly diminished today and that more and more the Europeans are trying to act accordingly.

A Passionate Interest in Boundaries

ONE of the more extraordinary events of the past week has passed without notice, probably because of washroom distractions and well-publicized walkouts from our most famous judicial inquiry. Something surely should be said about the conversion to ultra-centralism of the Ralliement Creditiste. It is not always easy to follow the Creditistes because Mr. Chouette periodically scolds the separatists while reas-

Mr. Greigore, his talented deputy, is one of the more vocal exponents of that form of separatism known as the system of associate states. Fortunately it was Mr. Greigore who led off on Wednesday and who was most specific in stating the Creditiste proposition.

The House of Commons has been dealing with legislation intended to give effect to Term 29 of the terms of union between Canada and Newfoundland (thus disposing of a quarrel which developed during the Diefenbaker administration) by providing for payment to the province in 1967 and each year thereafter of sums of $8 million. To this Mr. Greigore took exception declaring: "But while a decision is being made on the amount to be awarded to Newfoundland, the federal government should remedy an abnormal situation which exists in that province. It is that, with the assistance of the Privy Council in London, Newfoundland has succeeded in stealing part of the territory of Quebec, namely Labrador."

This, of course, is an old grievance going back to 1927 when the Privy Council determined the boundary between Canada and Newfoundland. What is new and startling is the proposition that the federal government can remedy the matter, if remedy is needed, by taking from one province and giving to another.

Unilateral Act

Mr. Greigore cannot seriously believe that Newfoundland, whether it gets the $8 million annually or not, would willingly cede to Quebec the vast area of the Labrador watershed. It must, therefore, be his view that the federal government should act unilaterally; that it should, in his own words, "begin by seeing to it that something belonging to Quebec is returned to Quebec."

Provincial boundaries since Confederation have been determined in one of two

Hatred In Gaza

Herewith are excerpts from a letter sent to Donald Peden, 3205 Cadboro Bay Rd., who spent last summer in the Gaza Strip with the UN-YMCA leadership training program. He has kept up a correspondence with the writer, who holds a Bachelor of Commerce degree from the University of Cairo. Mr. Peden feels that these ideas are noteworthy inasmuch as they are held by 90 per cent of the many thousands of refugees in the Gaza Strip.

I am an Arab Palestinian refugee. I think that Canadians don't know in detail what has happened in the Middle East.

I hear that you have free journalism and I am writing to you from Palestine, the land of Christ, the land of spring and oranges, the land of peace, which has become a land of struggle and freedom, a land of revolt, bombs and fire.

Many years before Canada was discovered we were the strongest state in the world... our armies reached to China, India, and Spain, where we ruled for 400 years on a basis of justice, equality and dignity. We were the first in medicine, geography and other sciences.

Britain occupied our home at the end of the First World War. Britain was very afraid of Arab unity. She aimed to separate the Arab world and created Israel in Palestine, the heart of the Arab world.

Israel is a place of continuous aggression on the Arab world. Britain and the U.S.A. support Israel because Britain is afraid of Arab unity, and that they would lose the Arab petroleum. Britain is a thief who steals at night. Britain became weak and has been driven out of Egypt, Iraq, Jordan. Britain saw this coming and created Israel. U.S.A. supports Israel to weaken Arab unity and to attack the Soviet Union.

What is our position? We are not with the East. We are not with the West. We are with justice; we want all nations to live in peace. We struggle and fight against Israel because Israel slew our fathers, mothers, sisters and children without any reasonable cause and occupied our forefathers' home.

Israel always says Palestine was owned by the Zionists 3,000 years ago. This theory is not practical. If we force every people to go back to their native land, we can say that the red Indians in the U.S.A. and Canada can force you to go back to Europe.

We hate Britain because she created Israel and helped Israel drive us out of Palestine. We don't hate Jews, but we hate Britain and Zionists.

Now the Arab world is stronger. We have our great leader President Nasser and our Palestinian army of liberation. We feel that all the free peoples of the world will support us.

I hope you will help me present these facts. My best wishes to free Canadians.

Tragic Death

It is shocking beyond all comprehension to read that an Indian woman (Josephine Jimmy) was incarcerated—only to die—in this supposedly enlightened country. Surely the doctors attending this woman realized that jail is no proper place for a person suffering from such advanced physical deterioration, due, it is alleged, to a severe alcoholic syndrome.—J. L. Mordant 730 Humboldt Street.

ways; by the courts or by the Parliament of Canada. When Parliament has instituted changes, however, it has acted with the consent of the provinces and nearly always by enlarging the provincial domain through incorporation of areas formerly under federal jurisdiction.

The last extension of Quebec's boundaries was effected in 1912 by Parliament; the provincial territory being extended northwards to Hudson Strait and Ungava Bay. But at that time the dispute with Newfoundland was already a very old one and until the determination by the judicial committee, there was doubt about the area which had actually been transferred. Whatever the addition, it was carved out of the old territories as was the case with the enlargements of the provinces of Ontario and Manitoba at about the same time.

There was nothing accidental about this because the requirements are very clearly set forth in the BNA Act (1871).

Mr. Greigore seems to have given very little consideration to the constitution which he is so anxious to change.

With Consent

The act says, among other things, that the Parliament of Canada may from time to time establish new provinces in territories not included in a province and that it may, "from time to time, with the consent of the legislature of any province of the said Dominion, increase, diminish or otherwise alter the limits of such province," upon agreed terms.

If Mr. Greigore means what he says, the federal Parliament must have the right not merely to diminish the territories of Newfoundland, but also those of any other province, including Quebec. This would be a most formidable weapon to place in the hands of the federal government. It might conceivably provide a means of settling a good many problems in favor of Ottawa, but, so far as one can gather, it is not a means ever suggested by any centralizer until Mr. Greigore came along.

In the election campaign now proceeding in Quebec province, Mr. Greigore's friends have formed an alliance with a group calling for associate statehood. There is perhaps a relationship between the election and Mr. Greigore's passionate interest in the boundary question. He should, however, seize the opportunity to give Quebecers the benefit of his full theory, including the power of Ottawa to do what it likes with provincial boundaries regardless of the wishes of the provinces concerned. It may be strong medicine for Quebec voters at this particular time but it should provoke a good deal of curiosity about the Creditistes.

"1 FIGGER IF A FOUR-LEAF CLOVER WILL BRING YA GOOD LUCK, A THREE-LEAF CLOVER IS GONNA HELP A LITTLE!"

Looking Back

From the Times of May 26, 1906:

An Esquimalt farmer tells this story relative to hunters starting their seasonal forays into the country. A Victoria gentleman possessed a valuable sporting dog which was extremely clever in the retrieving of game. The owner however was a remarkably bad shot, and one day on firing both barrels hastily at a rabbit, he heard a mournful howl. Then his dog appeared carrying a black object in its mouth, and laid it carefully at its master's feet. The animal had retrieved its own tail.

'COMIC' UPSETS POLAND

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER
The Washington Post

WARSAW — A vicious comic book printed in California is sowing Polish-American relations.

The illustrated pamphlet is titled "It's Fun to be a Polak" and it sells for a dollar. It pictures Polish-Americans as crude, unlettered, and unwashed.

The pamphlet has drawn a surprising amount of attention here, all of it indignant. At least three local publications, including Trybuna Ludu, the Communist party daily, have attacked the booklet.

A high-ranking official in the Polish foreign office told me that the comic is an "irritant" in the always delicate relations between Warsaw and Washington.

American diplomats here think their job is difficult enough without this added complication. Their remarks about the free American press have not lessened the pamphlets sting.

Among some of its choice two-liners are the following: What do you call 28 Polak girls in a swimming pool? The bay of pigs; why are Polaks forbidden to swim in Lake Michigan? They leave a ring; Why don't they sell neckties in a Polish neighborhood? Very few Polaks have necks.

This last is illustrated with a drawing of a brutish, apelike figure, a picture that turns up with minor variations, throughout the pamphlet.

"Forum," a Warsaw weekly that reprints digests of articles largely from the western press devoted the back page of its May 8 number to "It's Fun to be a Polak." Forum ran several of the illustrations and said the page was "designed to give our readers an idea of how American humor is treating us."

Sydney, Australia's Spectacular New Opera House

Few buildings anywhere in the world have created the excitement in the architectural world that has been occasioned by construction of the new Sydney, Australia, Opera House shown above.

The Opera House draws interest on two counts: first is the spectacular design by Joern Utzon of a great sail-like structure on a magnificent site in Sydney Harbor with sparkling blue water on three sides; then there is the cost which, although it is expected to be enormous, has not yet been finally arrived at.

Although the Opera House looks complicated in design it is basically simple. Two main halls are placed side by side with plenty of space between them allowing people to approach and leave at any point of their perimeters. This does away with the complications of stairs and hallways.

In the base of the house is a chamber music hall with 300 seats, and experimental theatre with 400, and 50 dressing rooms and 20 rehearsal rooms as well as administrative offices. The two main halls above seat 1,200 and from 1,800 to 2,800 (depending on stage requirements) respectively.

One of the main problems when it came to translating the design into engineering blueprints was that it was envisioned as a "shell" in which the structure gains strength through its curvature. Many shell buildings have been put up in many parts of the world but never before one with such complex free forms.

The sail shells are to be covered with white ceramic tile to give contrast to the rough-textured pink base and these tiles will be integrally cast with concrete elements called tile lids which are bolted to the structure.

From the utilitarian viewpoint the inside design is actually more important than the outside, exciting and spectacular though that is. The acoustics is expected to be superb, stage lighting and mechanism of the best manufacture available and all arranged for great versatility. Ironically, the first booking for the new Opera House is for the World Congress of Dairy Farmers in 1970.

MAO'S DOCTRINES CAN DO ANYTHING

By STANLEY KARNOW
The Washington Post

HONG KONG — Back in the summer of 1963, Chou Hsin Li recalled, he faced a dilemma. He was manager of a state-owned chain of Shanghai fruit stores, and watermelons were not selling. They were rotting. Nobody wanted watermelon.

Writing in the Chinese Communist party's official Peoples Daily last week, Chou explained how he solved his problem. He put the theories of Mao Tse-tung into practice. From studying Mao's work "On Contradiction," Chou understood the contradiction between the melon supply and a lack of customer demand. From Mao's essay on "Protracted Warfare," Chou learned the necessity for attack.

Thus inspired, Chou mobilized his clerks, urged them to push watermelons. Thanks to Chairman Mao, sales boomed.

Good Steel

Thanks to Mao, Fang Chung-liang was able to produce excellent steel with an old side blow alkaline converter left over from "imperialist" days. Also thanks to Mao's philosophy, Hsu Yin-sheng won a pingpong championship.

To judge from Red China's press outpourings, Mao Tse-tung's doctrines can do nearly everything from curing disease and stimulating pig procreation to launching ships and building atom bombs.

Scarcely a day now passes without Peking's publicists loudly proclaiming their "socialist education" campaign — a campaign accompanied by purges of alleged "bourgeois" and "capitalist" elements. On the surface, this ideological drive suggests a national trauma. Yet there is a certain method in its madness.

A Substitute

All the tales of indoctrinated watermelon merchants and illuminated pingpong players are, in essence, aimed at propagating a kind of moral rearmament. They are designed to give the Chinese a sense of dedication and self-sacrifice to substitute for China's woeful lack of resources.

Time and again, in Peking's propaganda, it is not weapons or capital or equipment that win wars and construct factories, but the perseverance, loyalty, and common sense of individuals.

Mao Tse-tung's ideas. Communist theologians could probably show how Mao's belief in the primacy of the spiritual over the material is as much a betrayal of vintage Marx as any of Moscow's "revisionist" notions.

But, whatever their purity, Mao's dogmas are based on his own experience and on his analysis of China's needs,

Moreover, Mao considers them appropriate for the underdeveloped countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America which, like China, supposedly require revolutionary zeal to compensate for their poverty.

Practical Reality

At the moment, however, the key question is whether the Maoist ideal has practical, durable reality — or whether it is only a dream. This is the question that is apparently tormenting Mao and the older generation of leaders in their final years.

Mao's thinking has evolved largely from the Communists' military experience. From 1927, when they were shattered by Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists, until they took China in 1949, the Communists were weaker than their enemies. Yet they won, Mao is persuaded, because of his concept of "people's war," in which the masses were mobilized by a revolutionary hard core, prepared to wage a long struggle.

Today, the challenge is to transform huge, backward China into a modern industrial state. To a significant extent, the Communist leaders are striving to meet that challenge in much the same way they carried on their "people's war."

Hard To Change

It appears, however, that their present effort to change China and the Chinese is proving more difficult than their past battles against the Japanese and the Nationalists.

Through superb organization, the Communists have endowed China with a more stable administration than it has had in centuries. They have altered its society and economy, and they have given China prominence as a world power.

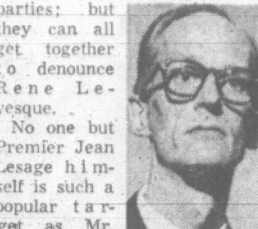

Paradoxically, though, these very achievements seem to have induced in the Chinese people a degree of complacency. As their confidence in their government has grown, their attraction to the revolution has faded.

Communist reports from China abound in admonishments of corrupt officials, selfish peasants, uneducated intellectuals and even beatniks in tight pants and duck-tail haircuts. Mao himself has sadly intimated to foreign visitors that Chinese youths are no longer what they used to be.

Thus China's future leaders may find that the shadow of ideology is ineffective without the substance of material incentive. And the Shanghai fruit merchant may discover that the study of Mao is not necessary for selling watermelons — as, indeed, he probably knows already.

Levesque Prime Target For Quebec Opposition

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Correspondent

One reason for all these opposition attacks is the obvious one, the same reason that Mr. Levesque's list of campaign appearances is longer than that of any other minister, except the premier, and includes a good many ridings where the Liberals have heavy going.

He is far and away the most popular minister and probably the most popular political figure in the province, not popular, obviously, in the sense that everybody thinks he is nice, but in the sense that millions admire him intensely while others think of him as "that horrid Rene Levesque."

Dr. Rene Jutras, one of the two heads of the ultra-conservative and nearly-separatist Ralliement National goes even further.

As he sees it, the minister of family affairs goes beyond capital and the English in pursuit of victims. Dr. Jutras accuses Mr. Levesque of trying to "chase God away from Quebec families."

Moreover, says Dr. Jutras, "Mr. Levesque is not a nationalist; he's a socialist."

No Socialist

But the Rassemblement Pour L'Independence Nationale, which is mildly socialist itself, finds Mr. Levesque not even much of a socialist.

To the RIN he is just an unreconstructed Liberal and, in fact, a "myth."

The RIN argument is that even if Mr. Levesque might appear himself to have some reforming zeal he is shackled and made powerless by the mass of the Liberal machine to which he belongs.

But John P. Boyle, leader of the English-speaking "Quebec Conservative party," says Mr. Levesque is "the man we must fear as the most dangerous political opponent."

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Correspondent

we consider fundamental ourselves.

"To deprive the English-speaking minority of its rights would be a scandalous step backwards when we haven't even got the guts to make our own language respected in Montreal."

"A Quebec, even separated, that didn't respect its minorities would no longer be civilized."

Mr. Levesque has often taken up the cudgels for the English minority in this way. But he has usually done it before a group of nationalist students, not before the Canadian Club.

Similarly, at a time when the voice of the student is heard with unprecedented respect in Quebec, and when students tend to take themselves and their strikes with deadly earnestness, Mr. Levesque tells a group of them: "The public does not have the impression that you are the victims of society. Your strikes are not taken seriously because you are risking nothing."

Learn To Walk

And he tells them that they lack maturity and will have to learn to walk before they can run.

Premier Lesage, in one of the great gaffes of his career, once said of the Fulton-Favreau formula, "How do you expect me to explain that to the uneducated?"

Rene Levesque, on a platform in front of an audience that looks, at least, about as "uneducated," as they come, will work through on a blackboard the implications of a change in the income tax system from exemptions on income to abatement on the tax itself.

It may be close to 11 p.m., the crowd may have been listening to the supercharged Levesque laryngitis for a good hour and a half, but there is an attentive stillness in the ball, all eyes on the blackboard.

MPs Must Keep Sharp Eye On the Galleries of House

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—When Grits and Tories demean the legislative process with words of abuse and motions of censure and charges of scandal, they must do so henceforth with a sharper eye to the Commons galleries.

Somewhere someone may be preparing his own motion of non-confidence to toss into the debate.

Like a bombshell, you might say.

This is Parliament's legacy from the late Paul Charlier, who showed what is loosely referred to as the lunatic fringe that with determination and a little luck a man off the street can achieve the wrongs he believes he has suffered at the hands of the government.

Or, as Charlier sought to do, rid the country of MPs "caught in the web" of "scandal, corruption and Mafia tactics," using Parliament "for poppy-talk (poppycock?) on sex and fraud," and deserving his bomb "for the rotten way you are running this country."

The speech that Charlier sought in vain to deliver in the Commons, and from which these quotations are taken, is a pathetic document, an emotional but not irrational plea for social and economic equality and justice.

Any able New Democratic MP could take whole chunks of Charlier's material, polish it, deliver an eloquent speech with it, and mean every word of it.

Whether Charlier was mentally ill is a question that could be determined only by psychiatrists, and it's too late for that. His personality traits, as reported by his family and friends, suggest schizophrenia. So does his final, rash act. But even if not medically ill, he was certainly an emotionally disturbed individual for whom a fixation on the shortcomings of Parliament was a last straw.

Editors, columnists and other journalists frequently get intemperately critical letters from readers whom we call cranks. They have obsessions. They may rebuke the writer, or agree with him and go much further. A column reporting a federal accommodation or compromise with Quebec, for example, may prompt a letter condemning Prime Minister Pearson for "selling out to the French" and proposing to "hang the unprintable." Usually such letters are unsigned.

A fair number of "crank" letters come from persons who have personal grievances, real or imagined, over such matters as veterans' pensions, taxes, unemployment and lawsuits. They are the embittered, the chronic losers, the social misfits. Their troubles are always somebody else's fault—often the government's.

When the country has an ombudsman or people's tribune there will be new and simpler machinery than the courts for the correction of injustices, especially those caused by administrative law. But an ombudsman can do nothing for a man with an irrational obsession about an imagined wrong. Or for a man like Charlier, driven apparently more by warped social motives than by personal grievance.

Charlier sought to blot out a Commons that has not done well by the institution of Parliament since the Pandora's box of Gerda Munster was opened. Henceforth, as MPs cock wary eyes at the galleries, they might reflect on Charlier's pathetic speech, and on how they can cleanse the image of Parliament. They want security; let them seek it in popular respect.

Oysters and 'R' Months; The Peeling of Mushrooms

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Many beliefs of the "old wives tale" category seem to be founded on fantasy but some seem to have a grain of truth about buried in their misty background.

Such a one is the following: Oysters and other shellfish should not be eaten during months that lack an "r" in their name.

Actually there is no real reason why such sea-food can't be eaten at any time during the year. However, oysters, to which this "rule" probably applied, ordinarily spawn in summer and during this period they are soft and rather unpalatable compared with those taken in the "r" months. Perhaps this is sufficient reason for some persons to avoid oysters except in the winter when they are in full flavor.

There is another aspect which may have been the basis for the belief. Oysters, clams, crabs and other shellfish are eaten without digestive upset usually results. In the past this probably happened most usually in the "r"-less summer months, often enough to cause persons to shy off at this season. Nowadays with modern handling methods plus refrigeration these sea-foods can be safely eaten at any time of the year.

A mushroom is good to eat if you can peel it. To those who enjoy experimenting with foods provided by nature it would be most useful is a simple "rule-of-thumb" such as the above, could be used in distinguishing edible from poisonous mushrooms. Unfortunately there is no such rule. Knowledge about the edibility of fungi has largely been gained by experience; species have been found to be either non-poisonous or toxic by direct experiment and not by any outward sign.

If a rule is to be followed then it should be never eat a mushroom unless you are certain of its identity and know of others who have eaten it without ill effects.

It so happens that the meadow mushroom which is the one most commonly eaten has a cap which peels easily. Perhaps this is the basis for the "rule of truth" in the old belief.

When preparing clams for food you should always discard the "neck."

In a number of our common species of clam the "neck" or siphon is covered with a tough skin that adds little to the stew or chowder. However, there is no real reason why this part cannot be eaten. In fact it often consists of a considerable amount of muscle which can be made quite palatable if skinned and tenderized.

Some recent research has turned up a "grain of truth" in the old saw. It has now been discovered that the toxin produced by "red tide" sometimes becomes concentrated in the siphon of the clam—making it advisable to discard this portion if the mollusc is to be eaten. The chance of acquiring a clam that has been feeding on red tide is so remote, however, thanks to government inspection, that the old rule can be disregarded with confidence.

Send questions in natural history to Dr. Cliff Carl, care of the Victoria Daily Times.

Danger of LSD Concerns Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Use of the drug LSD by the beatnik fringe is a potential danger to the drug-taker and to his companions, federal drug officers say.

Efforts now are being made by the federal Food and Drug Directorate to draft legal controls on trafficking and possession of LSD.

Federal concern about misuse of LSD is illustrated in the current issue of Canada's Mental Health, a publication of the federal health department's mental health division.

OUTBURSTS

Dr. F. Gordon Johnson, a London, Ont., psychiatrist, describes in an article in the publication some of the effects produced by LSD in controlled medical use. They include violent outbursts by the taker who may try to act on bystanders emotions of love, hatred and fear.

Dr. Johnson also says that tests indicate that "in spite of the apparent profundity of thought that he (the LSD taker) experiences, intellectual standards actually deteriorate."

This is the kind of effect which, in uncontrolled use of LSD by unqualified persons, has the federal government worried.

SEE POTENTIAL DANGER

"It's the potential danger involved that we are trying to protect people against," says Dr. R. A. Chapman, head of the federal Food and Drugs Directorate.

Dr. Johnson catalogues the following observed effects in patients administered LSD:

Visual distortions such as sharpening of colors, shifting of objects in the room, a shimmering appearance of space and distortions of body image; tremors, perspiration, dilation of the pupils of the eyes and palpitation, nausea or vomiting. These usually occur in the first 30 minutes to two hours and are followed in the second to fifth hour by:

Meaningful images of a pleasant or unpleasant nature; withdrawal of attention into an inner world of fantasy; emotional instability ranging from continuous euphoric laughter to deep depression and sobbing; sense of personal identity "becomes thin"; "out"; mystical experience in which he feels extreme unity with God or the universe and that he deeply understands the essence of life.

SECT LEADER

It's Safe, Says Chief Boo Hoo

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arthur Kleps, known as Chief Boo Hoo by associates and followers in a religion which uses hallucinatory drugs as a sacrament, testified Wednesday that marijuana and LSD are harmless and vital to his religion.

Senator Quentin N. Burdick (Dem.-N.D.), presiding at a Senate narcotics hearing, asked if Kleps was disputing earlier testimony that use of LSD and similar drugs have caused suicides, psychotic behaviour and tragedies.

This is possible if the user lacks proper information, Kleps said. These cases probably were "panic reactions" to "what we call consciousness expansion."

Kleps, 38 and a prison psychologist for 10 years after winning his master's degree from Syracuse, N.Y., now is chief of the Neo-American Church, Morning Glory Lodge, Cranberry Lake, N.Y. He said his religious group has 500 members and churches in the north-east, Florida and California, and is growing.

Proposed Boost In Tolls Blasted

OTTAWA (CP)—Proposals for increased tolls on the St. Lawrence Seaway, including a new lockage charge at the Welland Canal, ran into a solid wall of protest Wednesday from major seaway users.

A public hearing on the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority's package plan to increase its revenues over the next five years was told the added shipping costs would hurt the national economy.

Of the 36 written and oral briefs presented, 23 argued that either the entire toll structure should be abolished or the federal treasury should take on the seaway's annual debt payments and let tolls cover the costs of operation and maintenance.

The proposals, made jointly by the Canadian and U.S. seaway agencies, seek an increase of about 10 per cent in tolls on the Montreal-Lake Ontario section of the seaway. The lockage charge at Welland, where tolls have been suspended since 1962, would start at $160 a transit in 1967, and jump by $160 a year to a maximum of $800 in 1971.

As originally planned, the $475,000,000 seaway was supposed to pay for itself over 50 years. But ever since it opened in 1959 operating income has been insufficient to meet fully the annual debt due. As a result, it has been sliding deeper into the red.

The two seaway agencies intend to submit the new toll proposals to their respective governments following the public hearings which are to end here today and reopen in Chicago next week to hear American views.

It then will be up to Ottawa and Washington to weigh the arguments and come up with a decision. When the Canadian seaway first proposed the increase two years ago the U.S. side did not agree and the matter was put off for two years.

Pierre Camu, president of the Seaway Authority, presided at hearings Wednesday but did not comment on the arguments presented.

Much of the criticism was directed at the Welland Canal charge. The Welland was toll-free from 1903 to 1959 when a levy of two cents a ton on bulk cargo and five cents a ton on general cargo was imposed. This toll was suspended in 1962 by the Conservative government and the suspension has been continued by the Liberal administration.

George F. Bain, vice-president of Upper Lakes Shipping, Toronto, challenged the seaway's legal right to introduce the lockage charge. He called it a back-door method of getting around the federal toll suspension.

Stuart Armour, president of the Great Lakes Waterways Development Association, said the seaway should admit that it cannot pay off its debt at a reasonable toll level and quit charging as much as the traffic will bear.

He said the Welland charge alone could drive small vessels out of business.

Economics Minister S. J. Ruppall of Ontario filed a written protest against the Welland charge. He said it would create an artificial barrier to provin-

SECURITIES PARLEY SCHEDULED IN JUNE

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal-provincial conference has been called for next month to examine the whole field of corporate financial disclosures, securities regulation and fraud prevention, Prime Minister Pearson announced Wednesday.

The meeting will be held at Ottawa June 27 and 28 with officials from all provinces participating.

Officials will consider possibilities of improved co-ordination and "greater uniformity in the field of securities and company legislation."

There will be a review of measures in the discussion areas at federal and provincial levels.

A federal team including outside consultants has conducted preliminary discussions in provincial capitals in preparation for the Ottawa conference.

No Official Complaint By B.C. Longshoremen

OTTAWA (CP)—The labor department will investigate only if a specific complaint is made by British Columbia longshoremen that provisions of the Labor Standards Code have been violated by employers, Labor Minister Nicholson said Wednesday.

He told the Commons that so far complaints have been only general. There have been no specific complaints of workers deprived of holiday pay May 23 or paid less than the double pay required in the code.

Mr. Nicholson was replying to questions from New Democrat Leader Douglas and from Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni). Mr. Barnett referred to harassment of longshoremen by employers.

As he was busy with plans for the coming "Water Cress Festival" and "Bird-Watching Round Robin Tournament," he has been unable to devote much time to the affair. However, he was heard to mutter a quiet "Good show!" when he visited Morrison's used car lot.

LIGHTNING-GALLOP POLL REVEALS 9 OUT OF 10 IN FAVOR OF MORRISON'S LOW PRICES

Simple questions were put to several bystanders yesterday. Questions like: "Do you favor prices this low for used cars?" and "Will the public buy, just because prices are incredibly low?" were put. Nine out of 10 men asked, answered a strong "YES" to each. The only dissenter was one of Morrison's 10 used car salesmen who happened to be sick, and was worried about the commissions he was going to lose.

SPORTS

DOUG PEDEN, Sports Editor

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

Conjecture was rife wherever hockey men gathered in the last 10 days.

In San Diego where the directors of the Western Hockey League met, conjecture was even rampant. One pitcher of ice would be sufficient, wouldn't it? Surely the sparkling water was ordered, wasn't it? And the cards. Certainly somebody brought two decks?

The results of the meeting? The WHAT? The meeting. Oh, yes. There WERE results, ponderous decisions to be grappled with and overcome.

Well, for one thing, WHL directors decided on a 72-game schedule. It will start Oct. 14 and end April 2. Teams? Well, they didn't know how many, but there'll be some.

On one point the directors were unanimous. When it came to a decision to adjourn, there was nary a dissenting voice. We'll do it again they said with one voice, in June at San Francisco. San Francisco is delightful in June.

NHL Types Make Judas Look Good

Surmise was also played in Victoria last week by Foster Hewitt, passing through en route to San Diego. Hewitt has been stuffing his satchel with banknotes the last few hundred years as a play-by-play orator of Toronto hockey games.

Last year he invested in the Vancouver Canucks franchise. Playing in The Forum, the Canucks managed to part Hewitt and Co. from 90,000 green ones. But Foster didn't bleed much; after all wasn't Vancouver certain to be accepted into the National Hockey League's expansion chest?

History records that the NHL did not accept Vancouver's $2,000,000 for a franchise and players. Instead, licences to print money (or lose it) were granted to such exotic and TV-populated villages as Baltimore and Philadelphia. St. Louis and Pittsburgh.

Hewitt's appraisal of NHL ethics is not flattering. By comparison, a chap named Judas was a Queen's Scout.

Since he was on the inside, Hewitt's conjecture of the NHL's motivation for expansion, it's method of distributing the product and it's future command attention.

"The directors didn't want any part of expansion," Hewitt claims. "But when the American and Western Leagues agreed on an interlocking schedule and talked about television contracts, some of the younger NHL men became worried."

Foster Proposed Western Network

"Jim Norris was flat against it. We're making money for ourselves—why spread it around? was his reasoning. Finally Norris came around. On his terms."

"St. Louis had to be in. That gave Norris (who owned Chicago before his death a few months ago) a chance to unload his white elephant of a building."

Hewitt's hypothesis is unarguable on this point. Not one application for the St. Louis franchise was filed the day directors announced the city would be taken into the club.

"Norris' second point was a television survey. Naturally it showed that Vancouver was already serviced by the CBC on Montreal and Toronto games so not a nickel more could be obtained there."

"Cyrus McLellan (the other half of the Vancouver entry) and I thought Montreal and Toronto would support our application if only on the grounds that Canada should retain interest in it's game. But they balked. They split Canadian TV revenue; with Vancouver in, it would have cut the TV pie three ways."

Hewitt proposed that the expanded NHL consider separate east-west TV pacts before trying for a grand slam national hookup.

"I suggested a western network—Vancouver, San Francisco and Los Angeles—set up independent of an all-eastern alliance. When we proved—and I'm sure we could have—that there were successful we could have gone for a national or international deal."

For Key Game NBC Vastly Apathetic

Norris and the brotherhood had beady eyes for the whole pie. A Hewitt story indicates they could be a million light years away from sticking their grubby fingers into it.

"The NHL became excited when NBC said it would telecast in color four Stanley Cup playoff games. The network did three Sunday games."

"After Canadians won their third game the network knew as did the whole hockey world, that the series could end with the sixth game on a Thursday."

"That meant NBC would have to do the Thursday game and clear prime time to show it. Taping it for showing on Sunday would have been ridiculous. Not doing the Thursday game was out of the question—unless Detroit came up with a miracle there would be no seventh game on Sunday."

"When the two teams took the ice that Thursday there wasn't an NBC man in the building. To me that showed NBC couldn't care less."

If you like far-out surmise, hear this Hewittism: "Let's suppose I'm wrong. Suppose the major U.S. networks fell over themselves to televise hockey internationally."

Good-bye Montreal and Toronto...

"You know what that would mean? Toronto and Montreal would be dead as member teams. Some rich Texans would move in and buy those clubs and locate them in Houston or Dallas or wherever they would bring the most TV money."

"You don't think it could happen? Let me tell you this. An American couldn't care where the team is as long as it is where the money is. The NHL directors proved this by taking in partners on the basis of potential, not merit. Where did you ever hear of a hockey fan in Philadelphia?"

"In the early days of the National League, the fear of being gobbled up by American interests was Conny Smythe's major worry. That's why there's been a kind of moral alliance between Montreal and Toronto."

Surely, Sir? Foster, the Smythes and the Molsons would never let the Leafs and the Canadiens out of their hands for mere money?

He cleared his throat. "Whether they would have enough loyalty to pass up millions of dollars, I wouldn't be prepared to say. But I wouldn't bet against it."

Canadians Click In French Event

PARIS (CP)—Three Canadians emerged victors and another was defeated in women's singles play Wednesday at the French international tennis championships.

In first-round play, Andree Martin, Montreal, beat Margaret Schultze of West Germany 6-4, 6-4. Vicki Berner, 22, Vancouver, was defeated 6-0, 6-2, by Francoise Durr of France.

Three Goals Up, Irish Clipped 6-5 By Westminster

By HAL MALONE

The law and New Westminster Salmonbellies collaborated Monday to defrock Victoria Shamrocks 6-5 at Memorial Arena.

Against that combination, few teams would have a chance of dethroning the Mann Cup lacrosse champions.

Shamrocks, missing Billy Gray, minus Tom Black, aren't one of those teams. They have too many newcomers to be a blended unit; they tend to mental lapses; and they don't score enough goals.

They might have made it past Westminster with all those liabilities but for a discretionary ruling by referee Jim Foulis.

Foulis' "indiscretion" as the Victoria players referred to it, came with two minutes to play.

HAD A CHANCE

Westminster's Paul Parnell, cruising in on the Victoria goal, was dropped legally and forcefully on his mush.

The ball skidded loose. Victoria's Ranjit Dillon snared it.

Dillon, noticing that Parnell was slow getting up and that another Westminster player was trapped on the play, bolted up the floor on a five-on-three break.

Suddenly, Mr. Justice Foulis got on his whistle — a tweet! tweet! — and the Victoria advantage came to a grinding halt. Most of the grinding and gnashing of teeth was done by Victoria coach Bert Bertola. With one arm on a supporting steel pipe and his feet on the railing, he orbited perilously in the manner of King Kong after eating his breakfast Wheaties.

LOST ADVANTAGE

Foulis merely pointed to the Victoria end where Parnell lay prone, groaning audibly.

On resumption of play, the officials gave the ball to Dillon and made one Westminster player start from deep in the Victoria end. But a five-on-four break is vastly different from a five-on-three.

Later Whitley Severson, the second referee, explained that play can be stopped at the referee's discretion when a player is hurt or appears to be hurt.

"If it has been a two-on-one break we'd never have stopped it," Severson said. Foulis nodded assent.

MATTER OF WORDS

Victoria's Bertola, seething but no longer foaming, claimed the key phrase is "if a player appears to be hurt."

"Parnell could have been resting for all they knew," Bertola said. "We had enough of an advantage with two of their men out to score the tying goal."

Parnell said later that he landed on a "funny bone nerve" in his right leg. Then he walked from the running table to his locker without the need of crutches.

Diverse viewpoints aside, it was an interesting if not classic struggle. The Rocks twice had Salmonbellies looking down the shaft of three-goal deficits.

PERSEVERANCE PAYS

Victoria led 3-0 and 5-2 but each time Westminster poked away, became more aggressive in collecting loose balls and rebounds and demonstrated that perseverance and pursuit bring their own rewards.

The turning point came with less than two minutes to play in the third quarter, advantage Victoria, 5-2. Wayne Shuttleworth, not molested too closely, slammed two low shots past Barry Forbes.

Larry Honey tied it at 7:05 of the last session, as Victoria permitted stray balls to find their way into Westminster sticks.

Cliff Sepka polished off the Rocks at 11 minutes on a power play developing out of a highly dubious high-sticking call to Victoria's Don McNeill.

Rocks used Ron Jay for the first time this season. The round man scored a goal and set-up two. When his lungs stop feeling like they're on fire and his legs become more svelte, he'll be an asset.

SHAMROCKS FULL OF ROCK 'N' ROLL

They may have goal production troubles but nobody is complaining about Victoria Shamrocks' checking these days—except opposition players. Typical of the Rocks' hit-'em-first-and-ask-questions-later technique is demonstrated by Reg Foster (15)

Bishop's Babes Trip Workers

By TONY COSIER

In an age in which the perpetual cry, "Kids aren't what they used to be," is being voiced everywhere, it is a relief to find a man who continues to believe in youth. Gary Bishop, playing-manager of Kings' entry in the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League, is that kind of man. The Kings' starting lineup features only three players over 21. Kings' three major starting pitchers are all under 21.

Asked to comment upon the youthful team's chances earlier this year, Bishop said, "We may lose some games through inexperience, but if these kids come through you can bet we're going to win some, too."

Wednesday night the kids came through and Kings defeated Transport Workers 5-4. John Knowles, a 17-year-old Colt league graduate, struck out 17 and gave up only four hits while picking up the victory.

KNOWLES QUICK

Knowles is a hard-throwing right-hander who likes to come in with a sharp breaking curve ball in tight spots, and if his last night's pitching performance is any indication of what he is able to do this season he may become the kingpin of the Kings' pitching staff.

Gary Robertson, a 19-year-old Connie Mack graduate, had a big night at the plate for Kings, pounding out a home run and two line drive singles while scoring four of his team's five runs.

Kings had to score in the bottom of the ninth to take the contest. Robertson started things off for them with two out and nobody on, by lining a single to left field.

An infield error kept Kings alive and allowed Robertson to advance into scoring position. Bishop smacked a single to centre to enable the rookie infielder to scamper home with the winning run.

It was a tough loss for Transport's John Yankoski, who walked only two batters, one of them intentionally, while fanning 16.

CAHA Delegates Support Peace-With-NHL Proposal

MONTREAL (CP) — A proposal that could bring peace between the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the National Hockey League was accepted Wednesday by delegates attending the CAHA's 50th annual meeting.

The motion, submitted by the organization's executive committee, calls for preparation of a memorandum outlining proposed changes in the current pro-amateur agreement. It requests that the two factions meet within the next 60 days to discuss the issues.

The membership agreed with CAHA secretary-manager Gordon Juckes of Melville, Sask., that details remain confidential until such time as the meeting proposed can be held.

Lionel Fleury, of Quebec City, CAHA president, who helped draft the proposals with his executive Tuesday night, was absent from Wednesday's sessions. He was confined to his hotel room by a recurrent heart ailment and will be forced to remain there until the end of this week.

tor to attend the sessions, which CAHA to the terms of agreement started Sunday and finish Friday, June 10, 1966, rather than June 1968.

The controversy hinges on the distribution of the funds paid by the professionals for amateurs. The CAHA voted to draft a pact signed with the NHL in 1958 for a 10-year period. However, the contract contained a clause which called for two years' notice of termination by either party, thus holding the hockey championships, to be held there Easter holiday week.

In a move to make hockey safer at minor level, a rules committee recommendation that all players under the junior A category be required to wear protective helmets, was passed when chairman Page cast the tie-breaking vote in favor of the motion.

The meeting also passed a motion requesting that all branches arrange for senior all-star teams under their jurisdiction to meet Canada's national team in a series of competitions to strengthen Canadian representation in international tournaments.

Juckes said that playingcoach Jack McLeod of the national team, as well as most of the players who represented to hold a six-team international tournament involving the national teams of Sweden, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, and the United States.

"We have made arrangements to join us in this tournament, and we have indications that all but Sweden will participate."

If you haul a troop (or tow a sloop) ...

You need the extra safety and stability of Monroe rear Load-Leveler stabilizing units

Monroe rear Load-Levelers automatically compensate for added weight to keep your car riding safely and comfortably level, with any load. And they prevent "bottoming" on bumps, swaying on curves, scraping on inclines, dangerous "tail drag." Even if you don't regularly haul heavy car loads, you'll like the wonderfully improved, road-hugging ride you'll get with rear Load-Levelers. Try them for 60 days, and if you don't agree they make your car ride its level best, return them for a refund and re-installation of your old shock absorbers.

WHEELS SHIMMY: Front-end sag throws wheels out of line, causes shimmy, excessive tire wear, loss of car control. Front Load-Leveler Stabilizing Units help hold wheels in line and on the road. Increase your tire mileage up to 50%.

TAIL DRAGGING: If your car's rear bumper or tailpipe scrapes on inclines, if your car rides unevenly with loaded trunk and rear seat passengers, you need Rear Load-Leveler Stabilizing Units to increase road clearance and eliminate costly repairs.

YOU CAN HAVE MONROE FRONT AND REAR LOAD-LEVELERS® INSTALLED IN PLACE OF YOUR STANDARD SHOCK ABSORBERS IN LESS THAN HALF AN HOUR AT YOUR FAVOURITE SERVICE STATION OR GARAGE.

TAKE THE
FREE RIDE

Have a set of MONROE Front and Rear Load-Levelers® installed today where you have your car serviced, and try them for 60 days. If you're not satisfied with the improvement in comfort and ride control, return them for a refund and re-installation of your old shocks.

OVERLOADING YOUR CAR: If you load the family and luggage into your car for week-end trips, or if you pull a trailer, get MONROE Front and Rear Load-Levelers and ride on an even keel. Monroe Load-Levelers eliminate bottoming on bumps, front and rear-end sag, rolling on curves, wheel shimmy and wind-sway.

Off-Street Parking Bylaw Action Delayed

Saanich council hedged slightly Wednesday night on the contentious issue of off-street parking at public schools.

By a vote of 5-3, council tabled a bylaw providing for off-street parking for students and others using facilities at the soon-to-be-built secondary school at Borden and Reynolds.

This was to allow immediate seeking of further information in the next two weeks before the time expires for bids called by the Greater Victoria school board for the new building.

The previous night at a sometimes-stormy meeting with school board trustees and officials the lands and planning committee recommended the off-street parking requirement be rescinded to allow for further information and for construction to start.

MORE INFORMATION

"This additional information must be secured in a short time so the validity of tenders will not be impaired," said Reeve Hugh Curtis.

Saanich will get its lawyer's opinion and further information from the planner on how other municipalities have been able to require off-street parking at schools.

Saanich wants to do the same but the school board said Tuesday night none of the land purchased jointly with the provincial government for the new secondary school can be used for parking, other than for teachers.

BUY LAND?

One suggestion was that Saanich buy the half-acre extra needed from the school board but this would need approval from the cabinet as well as the school board and Saanich.

Two councillors said there is off-street parking at Claremont Senior Secondary School in the neighboring Saanich School District, as well as a secondary school in Sooke which is in another district.

Coun. Leslie Passmore, who moved that the matter be tabled for the moment, said his idea at Tuesday night's meeting was to get more information.

DELETE RECOMMENDATION?

"I had not thought it would be on the agenda tonight," he said. "The idea was that if there is no possibility of council getting the right to compel this zoning then we would be in a position to delete the recommendation and let the school board go ahead."

Coun. William Campbell and Edward Lum said Saanich shouldn't have to provide the off-street parking itself.

Coun. Edith Gunning said she is "a little unhappy" at tabling the bylaw and Coun. Harold Todd said he would "as soon we drop this section of the bylaw."

Reeve Curtis said special council meetings can be held when legal information is obtained to handle the bylaw, which has yet to receive final reading.

Soviet Cuts at Expo

OTTAWA (CP) — The Soviet Union apparently has decided to cut its costs at Expo 67. According to its magazine Soviet Union Today, published by the Ottawa embassy, construction costs for its pavilion at the fair will be about $5,000,000 with the total bill running to about $8,000,000. This is about half the cost announced in January by Ivan Shpedko, Russian ambassador to Canada.

Victoria to Share Land Appraisal Cost

Victoria and Saanich will share the cost of an independent appraisal of the value of Gorge Park property required for road widening and bridge building purposes.

Mayor A. W. Toone told an informal meeting of city council Wednesday that Reeve Hugh Curtis found no complaint in the $1,500 an acre price being asked for parkland but that he did question the price being asked for the land required for the road and bridge program.

"The simplest thing would be an independent appraisal," Mayor Toone said. The original appraisal of $35,700 — the going market value of the land required by Saanich for its road program — was made by the city assessors department.

Ald. Michael Griffin objected to the city sharing the cost of the independent survey.

"Why should we pay part of the cost?" he asked. "It's our land, we own it, Saanich want it. We have set our price, now if Saanich wants a separate appraisal it should pay for it. I don't think we should be asked to pay half the cost."

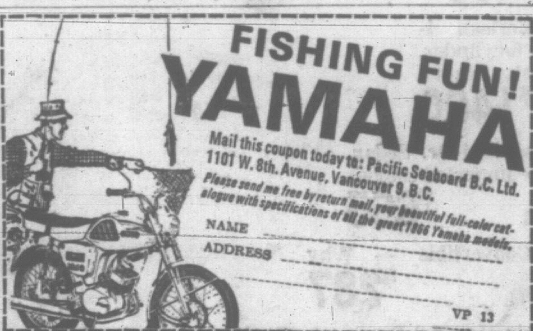

Ald. Hugh Stephen disagreed. "I think it's fair enough that we share the cost," he said.

Council agreed.

But Ald. Robert Baird had the last word.

"I would like to ask that when we get the money it be used to install lights at Athletic Park," he said. "After all it is park money."

"A nice try," replied Mayor Toone. "But I think that's another matter."

Some lessons we've learned about making small cars for Canadians.

Lesson 1. Build them in Canada. That's where the rugged weather is.

Lesson 2. Watch your paint. Use 5 separate coats of Canadian primer and paint, after rustproofing the bodies 6 times.

Lesson 3. Offer something unusual. Like a small car automatic for around $2,000.

Lesson 4. Make it good-looking. A small car doesn't have to be ugly to be well engineered.

Lesson 5. Give it a great independent suspension. Canadians have a knack for leaving the beaten path.

Lesson 6. Make the seats convertible to beds. A lot of Canadians are campers.

Lesson 7. Put in 4-wheel disc brakes, and offer a 4-speed synchromesh gearbox. Canadians are a sporty group.

Lesson 8. Keep at least a million dollars' worth of spare parts. And keep them available everywhere in Canada.

Lesson 9. Put in an engine that likes to be driven hard. Canadian roads are long and Canadians like to move along.

Lesson 10. Install a heater as large as most domestic big cars. Put in a booster fan and outlets for back seat passengers. Canada is a frosty country.

Lesson 11. Keep your prices down and your engineering quality up. There's a lot of competition.

These are lessons we've learned in Canada. This is the Renault 10 Major.

FALL FAIRS SUPPORTED BY GRANTS

Greater Victoria's two country fairs will be bigger this fall. A provincial cabinet order Wednesday gave $3,500 to the North and South Saanich Agricultural Association and $1,500 to Luxton Fall Fair to help with construction of new facilities.

The grants were part of a list totalling $18,500 distributed to various agricultural societies in the province.

Last Rites On Friday For W. York

Funeral services will be held at 4 p.m. Friday at Hayward's chapel for a native son, John William Dickens York, who died Tuesday in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mr. York, 88, was a keen athlete in his younger days.

With his late brother L. S. V. York he was well known for membership in local soccer, cricket, hockey and baseball teams.

Mr. York was also active in the Canadian Pacific Lawn Bowling Club until the time of his illness.

Born in Victoria, Mr. York was educated in England. He returned to the city in 1894 and had been a Victoria resident since.

He was an employee for 35 years of the hardware firm McLennan, McFeely and Prior, and was a member of the firm's office staff when Col. E. G. Prior owned the company.

Mr. York was assistant purchasing agent for Yarrows Ltd. during the Second World War. Surviving him are his wife Belle and a sister-in-law, Miss Estelle Roberts, at home, 2167 Granite, and cousins in England and California.

Poisonous Ticks Found on Pair

VANCOUVER (CP) — Poisonous wood ticks were found Tuesday on two children living in suburban North Surrey.

The tiny insects, which attach themselves to humans and animals and feed on their blood, were found on Sharon Wiebe, 13, and Wendy Larson, 9.

The ticks' bite can paralyze a small child. The insects have been blamed for 29 deaths in B.C. since 1900.

The children were camping with their parents at Nootka Lake, 15 miles from Merritt, in the B.C. interior, during the Victoria Day weekend.

HOME GARDEN

They Last Longer With Bit of Shade

By HILDA BEASTALL

We talk a lot about certain herbaceous perennials enjoying full sun, and sometimes it takes a few years of growing them before we realize the superior growth of the same plants when a little shade has developed around them.

Doronicum for instance, the yellow daisy-like flower which blooms with early tulips, has a short season unless in the light shade of trees during the afternoon, when it will go on till the end of June.

We know that perennials such as delphiniums will grow much taller when planted by a tall fence than in a border open to the sun from all sides. Light or dappled shade from trees will create the same conditions, reducing the temperature around the plants and prolonging the active growing period.

The idea is worthy of some experiment in the home garden.

Housing Program Wins $117,420 Grant

Victoria Senior Citizens' Housing Society was given a big boost towards its $352,000 project planned on Townley Street Wednesday.

Provincial cabinet approved a one-third grant totalling $117,420 towards the cost of providing the 38-suite low-rent development.

Cabinet also approved participation in financing a $420,075 vocational wing for Mount View Senior Secondary School.

The costs will be split with the federal government providing 75 per cent, the province 15 per cent and Greater Victoria School District 10 per cent.

Councillors attending the meeting will be Edward Lum, Mrs. Edith Gunning and William Campbell.

A number of delegates will visit Vancouver Island and Victoria Friday, June 10.

Herbaceous perennials which in full sun produce flowers more or less throughout the summer, might respond with even better and more continuous bloom if given say, an eastern exposure or a situation where the sun is filtered by trees from late morning until about five o'clock.

During this warm part of the summer days, the plants would have a chance to draw on the supply of soil moisture without the usual amount of transpiration taking place.

This is probably why we notice how much improved a flowering plant appears after two days of showery or simply cloudy weather in summer. It is not the rain which has helped by supplying moisture, but the fact that the plants during that period had a chance to take in more moisture than they gave out. This is also another good reason for watering plants well during a summer shower.

Heuchera (the Coral-bells), Polemonium repens (the dwarf Jacob's-ladder) and Nepeta mussini (Catmint) all long-flowering perennials, might be used for experimenting in partial shade.

Showdown 'Welcome' In Pulp Union Hassle

CAMPBELL RIVER — in a struggle with the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Workers' Union of Canada would welcome a secret ballot here to determine which union the men prefer, a spokesman said Wednesday. The Canadian union is locked Canadian union as the representatives of the 750 men employed at Elk Falls.

"We have signed up a majority of the men. The board should not procrastinate in granting the certification for the Campbell River operation because it will delay contract negotiations."

Mr. Cox said: "If necessary we would welcome a secret ballot at Campbell River conducted by the Labor Relations Board."

He claimed his union was called in to organize a Campbell River local three months ago because the men were dissatisfied with the international brotherhood.

PORT ALBERNI — Officials of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Workers' here said Wednesday Local 592 members have voted in favor of strike action.

Negotiations between the 7,000 paper workers and the eight B.C. pulp companies collapsed in Vancouver last week.

The unions are seeking a 10 per cent wage increase on a general workers rate of $3.44 an hour and a journeyman rate of $3.44 an hour.

Eighth annual inspection of No. 678 Sidney (Kinsmen) Squadron, Royal Canadian Air Cadets, will take place this evening at Victoria International Airport.

Weather permitting, the ceremony will be held adjacent to the provincial government hangar at 7:30 p.m.

The Sidney squadron last year was judged the most proficient in B.C.

Commanding Officer is Lt. J. R. Hannan of Sidney. The cadets will march past under the command of Cadet Warrant Officer John Wallace.

On conclusion of the formal inspection and march past the cadets will present band and precision drill displays and trophies will be awarded to outstanding cadets. Senior air force officers and representatives of the B.C. Committee of the Air Cadet League of Canada will attend.

The ceremony will be held at squadron headquarters at the airport if poor weather cancels the outdoor activities.

DUNCAN — A blood clinic is being held in Duncan today and Friday.

Blood donations are being accepted by Red Cross nurses at the United Church hall this evening between 6:30 and 9:30 p.m. and Friday between 1:30 and 4:30 and between 6:30 and 9:30 p.m.

Mrs. David Peachey, co-chairman of the Cowichan clinic, said Wednesday: "Because blood is free in Canada sick and injured saved more than $25,000,000 last year."

"But saving lives is the more important feature rather than the saving of money. It is an individual's right to live being preserved by his fellow man."

The committee hopes to collect over 500 pints of blood.

Great If They Keep Their Cool

BEST BONNET AWARDS in Campbell River's Beards and Bonnets Festival last weekend were given to, left to right, Ethel Nuttall, for the most "futuristic" bonnet; Marilyn Boyd for the most unusual, and Mrs. Sam

Nastasi, of Vancouver, for the most authentic bonnet. The event was part of four days of celebrations for the district's centennial and ferry opening. Eight months of planning went into the frolic.

MISS SIDNEY CONTEST

A new Miss Sidney will be chosen Friday evening at Sanscha Hall from 10 contestants from Sidney, North Saanich and Central Saanich.

Earlier fears that there would be insufficient contestants were dispelled last week when seven girls made last-minute decisions to enter.

The contest will start at 8:30 p.m. after the candidates have met the judges informally at a coffee party. Each of the contestants will make three stage appearances modelling various fashions, and concluding with a brief speech.

MISS CANADA

The new queen will be crowned at the queen's ball at Sanscha in June by retiring Sidney Queen Diana Willson. Miss Sidney will compete in the Miss PNE contest later this summer, and, if successful there, will be eligible to compete in the Miss Canada competition. The Miss Canada title was won in 1964 by Linda Douma of Sidney.

The 10 contestants this year and their sponsors are:

Penny Buxton, 19, of 1742 Prosser Road, Saanichton.

Julie Cox, 17, of 2287 Amelia Ave., Sidney.

Indians Urged To Join Plan

DUNCAN — George Manuel said Wednesday, Indians have been advised to join the B.C. Medical Plan "because they can receive the best services independent of the federal government."

Mr. Manuel is chairman of the B.C. Regional Indian Advisory Council.

He said some 500 Indians in the province are members of the B.C. medicare plan.

Applications for the medical plan have to be made individually.

Mr. Manuel recently took up his appointment as a community development officer at Duncan.

Drivers Fined

Mandatory Training Asked for Retarded

NANAIMO (CP) — The provincial government will be asked to amend the School Act to provide training and education of all retarded children in B.C.

The request was contained in a resolution passed Sunday at the annual convention of the Association for Retarded Children of B.C. The Burnaby resolution also asked the government recognize in grants the additional cost of such a program.

A Duncan resolution seeking government aid to communities operating and maintaining sheltered workshops for retarded adults was referred to the executive after being given approval in principle.

BABY TESTING
Other resolutions approved called for:

● Taking of steps to promote routine, adequate testing of all babies born in Canada for metabolic, retardation-causing diseases;

● Examination and treatment of eyes, teeth, hearing and speech of retarded children;

● Request government assistance for communities wishing to establish activity training and employment facilities for adult retardates;

● Efforts be made toward easing Canadian and U.S. governmental regulations concerning retarded persons crossing the shared border.

Delegates were told border regulations require retarded persons or guardians to apply three months in advance of a planned crossing.

R. Harvey Davidson of New Westminster was re-elected president of the B.C. Association.

TOPSOIL

By far the cheapest and best for your lawn and shrubs. If applied as top dressing (one yard for every 600 sq. feet) it will, after three yearly applications, develop a thick and lasting turf that feels like a soft carpet. This is how good and lasting lawns used to be made. One yard of our weedfree topsoil, costing about $4, contains over 225 lbs. of organic matter and minerals. In comparison, one sack of chemical fertilizer, costing about the same amount, contains only about 10 lbs. of plant nourishing minerals. Simple arithmetic thus proves that good topsoil is by far the cheapest and best fertilizer for lawns, both new and old ones.

Most important of all, good topsoil is not "a shot in the arm" but IT LASTS!

The price of weedfree topsoil is such that considering the cost of dweeding and the health hazards involved, TOPSOIL THAT IS INFESTED WITH WEEDS HAS NO VALUE AT ALL.

Arthur Mayse

History will never mark the moment, but on Tuesday evening in Saanich municipal hall, a member of Greater Victoria School Board uttered what may well be the most significant declaration ever to emerge from that worthy if sometimes over-cautious body.

"We have to live within the rules," trustee Peter Bunn is quoted as saying, "but it looks like the rules should be changed."

As a general observation, this of Mr. Bunn's indicates a flexibility of mind which I heartily approve. Changing situations do call for changed rules in school boards as elsewhere; and the specific case which prompted Peter Bunn's remark is overdue for amendment.

This is the board's head-in-the-sand regulation governing the senior secondary student who, from preference or necessity, drives to his classes.

As matters stand, he is denied parking space for his car even on school grounds with room to spare. So he parks where he can, to the frequent irritation of householders and municipal authorities, and to his own considerable inconvenience.

★ This particular aspect of the parking problem has been giving trouble for a good many years.

It is, in fact, one of our harder perennials, and the Tuesday clash between Saanich lands and planning committee and a school board delegation developed along what have become classic lines.

The municipality urged off-street parking at the rate of one space for each 10 students.

Speakers for the board retreated into a red tape jungle of rules, regulations, and conditions of provincial grants.

After a deal of tussling to and fro, the contest dragged to an inconclusive halt, Saanich agreed to remove, for the time being at least, an off-street parking clause from a zoning bylaw which will prepare the way for a new Reynolds Road secondary school.

Further discussions are to be held. Reeve Hugh Curtis and his councillors may well have had no other choice than to shelve their bid to move student cars into school territory where they belong. Still, I hope that they will be encouraged by trustee Bunn's wise words to try again for that parking lot.

There is, or should be, nothing sacred about a rule which has outlived its usefulness and certainly there is no virtue in preserving it as a relic to be tripped over. If it needs changing, by all means get busy and change it!

★ Most certainly, a school needs plenty of elbow room for physical education and student athletics; and to introduce off-street parking in the grounds allotted by early planners to some of our old red-brick monstrosities would be no easy task.

In others, of which Oak Bay secondary is one, there's room and to spare for student parking. Just as Saanich did this week, Oak Bay municipal council has sought to fetch student cars off the streets and into the school area, only to be knocked back by an unbudging board.

One factor in these refusals is, I suspect, a simple reluctance to break with tradition. In the good old days, boys didn't bring cars to school; why, then, should they insist on doing so today?

Well, tradition is dandy, until it gets in the way of necessary action. The young car-owner is a phenomenon of our times, whether we like it or not. For that matter, even in the era of the little red country school-house, I seem to remember the hitching rack and lean-to shelter provided for the kids who came on ponies.

In most respects, Greater Victoria School Board performs a difficult service very well. In years when a drastic population boom is compounding the complexities of its job.

In this vexed matter of student parking, though, the board is considerably behind its times and should amend its heirloom rule with no more delay than need be.

CURIOSITY is evident in the expression on both the faces of the Kwakiutl bear totem and Ontario visitor David J. Jamieson of Burlington. Mr. Jamieson isn't used to totems and the totem hasn't seen many tourists so far. It has just been erected and will be dedicated by Indians Saturday. Story of the bear will be told in authentic songs and dances.

Chief We Shakes Coming to Town For Totem Rites

Chief We Shakes and other members of the Kwakiutl Indian settlements of the northern coast will hold a solemn ceremony here Saturday.

Mayor A. W. Toone, chief of the big lodge on Pandora Ave. will take part too.

The event is the formal unveiling of the new Kwakiutl bear pole, a totem carved by Henry Hunt of Victoria, on the causeway at Belleville and Government.

Mrs. Hunt has arranged for Chief We Shakes (Charles H. Dudoward of Port Simpson) and singers and dancers of the Indian settlement at Fort Rupert to be present.

A special visitor will be Henry Hunt's father, Johnnie Hunt, 84, who is coming from Kelsey Bay to sing at the "totem warming."

COLOURFUL EVENT
The colorful event is part of the provincial centennial program planned by the native Indian subcommittee headed by R. P. Clifton of Comox.

GROWING ROLE

Engineers Wanted Men In Hospital

Engineers are rapidly becoming indispensable members of surgical teams in hospital operating rooms, Health Minister Eric Martin said today.

He told the annual meeting of the Registered Nurses' Association in the Empress Hotel the new development stems from increasing use of electronic equipment.

"Although automation and computer-programming have produced miracles in business administration, I personally believe that the effect upon medical science will be even more profound," Mr. Martin said.

He cited by way of example a recent brain operation in New York when an electronics engineer was one of the 13-man surgical team.

"More than one dozen different electronic instruments were used in the successful completion of this particular operation," he said.

MODERN WARDS
"Such machines, some relatively simple and others, incredibly complex, are but one indication of the increasing complexity of modern medicine and upon medical science and a modern hospital."

Mr. Martin said that in the particular New York hospital he was referring to, the electronics engineer is a permanent member of the staff because it now has $500,000-worth of electronic equipment.

Totems of similar style are being erected along the B.C. coast on a tourist route to be known as the Totem Route, which originally was referred to as Route of the Haidas. There will be 20 poles in all along highways and at ferry terminals between Swartz Bay and Prince Rupert.

The Victoria ceremony takes place at 11 a.m.

Another pole is being erected in Saanich at the corner of Bute Street and the Trans-Canada Highway. Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich will unveil it Saturday, June 4. Both ceremonies are open to the public.

TAYLOR TELLS BUSINESS LEADERS:

Local Culture in Need of Boost

The president of the University of Victoria today urged city business leaders to support the arts in Victoria.

Speaking to the Rotary Club of Victoria, Dr. Malcolm Taylor said the arts in this city are progressing with "extraordinary difficulty."

"Some people think that the arts are only for a few and that the few should support them."

"This is not true, for the level of artistic development is what distinguishes life from existence, what transforms a city of mediocrity into a city of excellence, what transforms a city of mediocrity or a town of dullness into a city of excitement."

"I urge members of this club to ask themselves what they can do to make this city famous for its symphony, its theatre and its art gallery."

CULTURAL CENTRE
Speaking specifically about the University, Dr. Taylor said it itself was a cultural centre.

Sussexvale Senior Guard In Swiftsure

The Pacific Maritime Commission and ocean-escort HMCS Sussexvale will serve as senior guard and patrol ship throughout the Swiftsure Race this weekend.

Under the command of Lt. Cmdr. Fred Crikard of Victoria, the ship will be in the Inner Harbor Friday evening to take part in pre-race festivities. The ship will be dressed for the occasion with pennants and flags.

Early Saturday morning the Sussexvale will proceed to the starting line at Brothie Ledge and fire the starting gun.

The ship will guard the more than 80 yachts participating and relay hourly progress reports to shore headquarters of the race committee.

HIDDEN in that cedar log in the sling is the Bear Totem. It took months of carving by Henry Hunt at Thunderbird Park to expose the bear. The log was donated by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company Ltd. Henry's skill came largely from his famed predecessor, the late Mungo Martin.

TAYLOR TELLS BUSINESS LEADERS:

Local Culture in Need of Boost

"But it is part of the community and its success depends on what else is happening in the community."

The University, he said, has come from the minor to the major leagues.

Dr. Taylor said the University of Victoria's "extraordinarily rapid growth" has caused stresses and strain.

But he reported that in "two main functions of a university, teaching and research," the University of Victoria was doing "exceedingly well."

BIG INCREASE

Outlining the growth and future development of the university, Dr. Taylor said that in the three-year period since Victoria College became the University of Victoria "our enrolment has increased by 50 per cent, from 2,000 students to 3,000 students, and we are now preparing for 400 to 500 more next year."

"We have appointed in the last two years 99 members of faculty. For the coming year we have made 57 new appointments, from a total of 31 different universities—London, Oxford, Paris, California, Harvard, Freiburg."

"It is a rich mix," said Dr. Taylor of the University's Faculty of 260.

"In addition," he said, "next week we will announce the appointment of our new Director of Fine Arts."

Other major changes and additions at the University cited by Dr. Taylor were:

★ A full-scale revision of the curriculum for the B.A., B.Sc., and B.Ed. programs.

★ A plan for the development of a college system.

★ A new school of graduate studies.

★ A comprehensive plan for development in the fine arts

★ General academic planning for the future.

Explaining his assessment of the quality of teaching at the university, Dr. Taylor said: "One of the tests is the recognition of our students receive through national and international scholarships."

"This year, our record is outstanding. Out of 54 Canadian universities and colleges we stand sixth in the number who received the coveted Woodrow Wilson scholarships valued at $2,000.

"In addition, 12 out of a graduating class of 64 in science received National Research Council fellowships at $2,500."

"It has been a banner year," said Dr. Taylor.

"The only problem is that we have set such a high standard we may not be able to repeat it next year."

Referring to the past year's student fee disputes, Dr. Taylor said, "We are not the only university to suffer the fate of unfavorable publicity."

"In an institution dedicated to freedom of expression it is inevitable that foolish statements will be made."

"Where 3,000 young people are being challenged to become responsible, it is obvious that some will act irresponsibly."

RESPONSIBLE
"But," he told Rotarians, "I would like you always to remember that the University has intelligent and responsible leaders; it has intelligent and responsible department heads and deans; it has a responsible Senate composed of academic leaders and responsible citizens; it has a Board of Governors composed of a number of your outstanding citizens."

Dr. Taylor said that irresponsible statements were inevitable in any university, but such statements were not typical of the "exciting, creative and solid work" being done.

Health Board Pullout Under Debate by City

Times Legislative Reporter

Victoria City Council today was expected to consider serving six months notice that it will pull out of the Metro Health Board.

Health Minister Eric Martin confirmed the possibility was discussed at a meeting of regional civic leaders and himself Wednesday but he was reluctant to give details.

Mr. Martin denied a rumor that he proposed Victoria withdraw from the board so that a complete reorganization of the controversial co-operative scheme could be undertaken.

He said the idea was raised by others at the meeting. "They suggested it," he said in an interview.

"I said if they had to decide to do such a thing that it was their prerogative."

"They brought up the section having to do with this six-month clause and we discussed it."

LOSE SUBSIDIES

The health board was set up as an ad hoc arrangement by former city manager C. C. Wyatt when efforts to establish an autonomous and fully-fledged health board failed because Saanich and the outlying areas were afraid they would lose their current heavy provincial health subsidies.

Under the Wyatt compromise, the various public health organizations in each of the municipalities and the provincial service agreed to pool their staff and split overhead costs.

Ever since, there has been friction between various components of the pool but these have been kept under control. However, some public controversy has broken out between the board's chief medical health officer Dr. John Whitbread and City Hall which pays his salary.

NO SPECULATION

Mr. Martin refused to speculate on what he would do if the board should break up through a city withdrawal.

Ald. Lily Wilson, a longtime member of the board representing the city, spent most of the morning at the Parliament Buildings closed with one of the lawyers in the attorney-general's department but she avoided an interview.

Earlier this year the majority of city aldermen staunchly denied Victoria had any intention of pulling out of the metro health organization.

Polled by telephone the aldermen stated that if there was any move afoot indicating withdrawal by Victoria they had not heard of it and that should such a proposal be made they would vote against it.

SLOWDOWN

The consensus at that time was that Victoria's withdrawal would be a retrograde step.

There is no indication as to what brought the change of mind but it is believed that the city feels the threat of withdrawal the only way to bring matters to a head.

ALASKA BLEW OUT THE FLAME THAT GAVE US HOT WEDNESDAY

We can blame it on Alaska.

Weatherman Bill Mackie says today's nasty weather came to us from the North Pacific and Alaska.

Quite a change from Wednesday's maximum high of 71 was this morning's rain shower and cold wind.

NEW PHONE DIRECTORIES

Like the Big Type? Fat Look in Sight

There's good news for telephone, book squinters—larger type.

B.C. Telephone's Victoria district manager E. L. Mallett today said larger lettering will be a feature of the 1966 directories which come out in December.

This paragraph is printed with a larger size type, similar to what you'll see in the new phone books. It's expected diallers will obtain fewer wrong numbers as a result.

A new type face represents a major expense and a dramatic growth in the size of the directory.

It will cost $35,000 to reset the directory and future issues will cost $18,000 more than the present issues.

A total of 750,000 lines must be reset. There are about 63,000 listings in the white pages.

This means each book will be 17 per cent heavier than present books. This will require using an additional 246,000 pounds of paper.

Where there are now 144 pages, the new phone book will have 208. And for the first time, there will be an index included for the yellow pages.

600-Mile Coal Pipeline May Follow Japan Pact

A crash-program study is under way to determine feasibility of building a pipeline to move up to 10 million tons of coal each year almost 600 miles across the southern end of the province.

Commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner revealed today the pipeline study, and other background information sketched the immense scope of the contracts now under negotiation with Japanese steel interests which could see up to $100 million of Fernie coal shipped across the Pacific annually.

Besides the tremendous traffic, the contracts would prompt development of the province's first modern deep-sea jetty—probably just outside the present Vancouver harbor—as well as construction of either a pipeline or major expansion of railway facilities.

PIPELINE IN USE

Coal is being moved now through a 100-mile pipeline in midwestern United States.

If one is built in B.C. it would crush crushed coal in solution through a one or two-foot pipe across three mountain ranges from the mines of Crow's Nest Industries Ltd. at Natal—near by the U.S.-Alberta corner of the province—to the lower mainland coast with several pumping stations providing lift.

Mr. Bonner said that although Crow's Nest is trying to complete negotiation of a contract with Japanese steel interests for supplying two million tons of coal annually, this is only a preliminary deal.

"The actual range is between six and eight million tons a year," he said.

SIDES WITH FIRM

Mr. Bonner appeared to side with Crow's Nest in its dispute with the Canadian Pacific Railway which "is asking an unreasonably high freight rate for hauling the coal to Vancouver."

The coal company has applied for a charter to the province for a charter to build a spur line from Natal to Eureka, Mont., so it can ship via U.S. rail lines and docks in the event it cannot reach an agreement with the CPR.

Mr. Bonner Wednesday said his department was trying to resolve the dispute and several alternatives were under study.

This morning he revealed the pipeline, estimated to cost $30 million, was one of the alternatives.

He said technical studies are being pushed here on the pipeline's feasibility and the Japanese companies are co-operating with a similar study on the feasibility of reconstituting the coal "slurry" crushed material extracted

Ask The Times

Q. What cities will get a franchise in the expanded National Hockey League? C.R.

A. The Governors of the NHL announced this spring that the league will expand to Los Angeles, San Francisco, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and St. Louis in the fall of 1967.

Q. I saw some chickens with pastel-colored head feathers at the Victoria Exhibition last week. Were they natural colors? A. An exhibition director reports the colors were dyed. The chickens involved had naturally white head feathers.

DEAR ABBY...

Child Who Steals Could Be Sick

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My daughter goes to school with a girl who goes around telling all the boys if they want anything (material) she can get it for them. She brags that she has $3,000 worth of clothes, jewelry and things she has shop-lifted from stores.

She is a pretty girl and comes from a very nice family. Her parents can buy her anything she wants. She is a junior in high school, Abby. Should I tell her mother? I'm afraid she might hurt her parents, or herself if this continues. No name, please.

WINSLOW, MAINE.

DEAR ABBY: The child could be sick. Of course you should tell her mother. If it were YOUR daughter, wouldn't you appreciate the information?

DEAR ABBY: When Gus came home from a convention trip, I thought he acted kind of funny. It was two weeks before I found out why. It seems a bunch of the guys went out one night and got tattooed. Well, Gus had a pair of red lips tattooed on his seat. He said he asked for a rose, but the artist gave him the lips.

Gus says he is sorry, and he wears a large band-aid over it so it won't make me mad every time I see it. Is there any way to get that tattoo off his behind?

GUS'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Yes, Gus can have a dermatologist (skin specialist) inject a milky-colored liquid into the design to "erase" the tattoo. Gus has probably been needed enough already, but suggest it anyway.

DEAR ABBY: My husband seems to think I'm a magician. He wants this house spic and span, but if I'm dead tired at night he tells me not to work so hard. He's a great one for inviting crowds of people home for drinks and supper, but when the grocery and liquor bills come he says I am trying to send him to the poorhouse.

He nagged me for years to become "active" in community projects, but if he calls the house and I'm not home he raises the roof. If we've had a late evening—he tells me not to get up early, but he grows like a bear if he has to make his own breakfast. How can I tell him in plain language that I am no magician?

NO MAGICIAN

DEAR NO: He knows it. If you were, you'd have made him disappear a long time ago.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Hundreds of Problems Are Eased by These

By PENNY SAVER

Summer is certainly the season for budding artists to capture nature. Around our household right now we consider ourselves members of "Rembrandts Anonymous" with our brushes, paint buckets and ladders. You guessed it, it is a joint effort to paint the house—inside and out. The job is now near completion, and I am happy to say that there were no major calamities. The only thing that caused any concern at all was spilling paint on the furniture and floor. One store offered a solution to that.

Sheets of polyphane plastic came in handy to cover the floor and other things that could be ruined with paint splatters. These transparent sheets are eight feet by 12 feet, or 96-square feet in area, and sell for 98 cents for regular weight, and in the same dimensions, $1.75 for the heavy-duty type.

There are hundreds of other uses for these sheets. Storing clothes is no problem, as these sheets can be sealed by heat so that they are airtight. For added protection, place a few mothballs inside before completely sealing the bag.

Polyphane is moisture resistant too, so there is no danger of stored clothing getting damp and mouldy. It's ideal for storing furs in the summer months.

To seal, overlap the edges and cover the overlap with cellophane. Iron over the cellophane and you have a completely airtight, waterproof bag. The cellophane only prevents the iron from sticking to the polyphane.

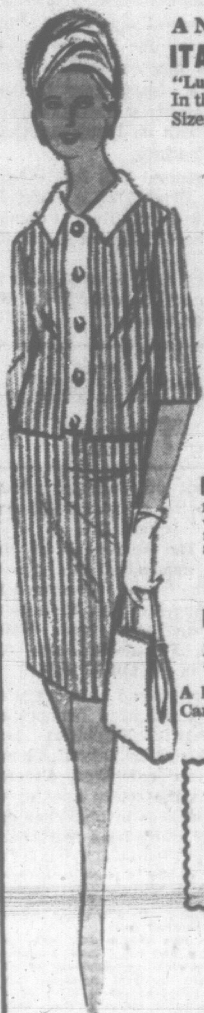

Another property of polyphane is that it is weather-proof. Because of this, garden fans can construct a greenhouse for very little cost. I'm thinking of more or less a tent-like structure supported by a wooden frame. With a bit of patience and ingenuity, anyone could make one.

There are countless other uses. For example, shower curtains, a sheet to place under baby's sheets, a picnic cover, a table-saver that resists stains and spills, and car seat covers. They can be used for added insulation for storm windows and to protect car windows in cold, winter weather. Polyphane won't crack in the cold, so it could even be used to wrap bulk foods that you are going to freeze. A few sheets of this wonderful plastic is a wise investment, just thinking of all its uses.

If you want to know where Penny found these all-purpose sheets, give her a call at 382-3131.

Mrs. Robert Swales, as worthy grand matron, will preside at the OES grand session, to be held here next week.

Gathering of 1,000 to Be Here For OES Annual Grand Session

More than 1,000 delegates, members and visitors are expected to attend the 55th annual session of the Grand Chapter of British Columbia, Order of the Eastern Star, to be held at Esquimalt Sports Centre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Victorians, Mrs. Robert Swales and James Moir, will preside as worthy grand matron and worthy grand patron. All chapters, from Fort St. John and Stewart in the north to Victoria in the south, will be represented.

Headquarters for the grand session will be the Dominion Hotel and registration will begin there on Saturday afternoon.

A church service will be held at St. John's Anglican Church on Sunday at 3 p.m. and the business sessions will begin Monday at 1:30 p.m. These will end Wednesday afternoon and the session will close that evening with the installation of new officers.

The incoming worthy grand matron and patron are Mrs. R. Fletcher, Vancouver, and Alfred Gatz, Whonnock, B.C.

The Order of the Eastern Star is the largest fraternal order in the world to which both men and women may belong, having over 3,000,000 in 14,000 subordinate chapters. Membership is restricted to wives, mothers, sisters, daughters and widows of Masons, and Masons themselves.

There are 90 chapters in the provincial organization with a membership of almost 12,000.

In British Columbia the main projects are cancer research and free cancer dressing stations, scholarship awards and Eastern Star training awards for religious leadership which provide funds for people entering the ministry.

Awards totalling $1,750 were given to five B.C. students during the past year.

Sixty-one free cancer dressing stations are maintained by OES throughout the province where patients can obtain, without cost, all the surgical dressings they need. OES members meet once a week to make the dressings and in 1965 $12,000 worth of raw materials was used. The Victoria station produced 40,090 dressings during the year. In its 19-year operation it has distributed $37,890 dressings. Mrs. G. H. Shane, Vancouver, is provincial director of cancer activities and Mrs. D. Watson has been in charge of the Victoria station since 1947.

In the field of scholarships, five $400 grants were made last year to sons and daughters of members to assist them in their studies at the University of British Columbia.

The order also assists the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, a hospital for children in Pusan, Korea; the Red Cross and a variety of other projects.

RAISES SUM OF $900

YM-YWCA Centennial Party

It was gay, it was warm, it was fun! The occasion was the centennial garden party of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the YM-YWCA, held in the spacious garden of the Rockland Avenue home of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Charman on Wednesday. The sun shone as if to rival the colors in the flower-beds while the many guests donned spring attire, completing the brilliant kaleidoscope.

Adding to the carefree atmosphere, the band of the Central Junior Secondary School played lively airs throughout the afternoon.

The affair, which realized $900, was opened by Mrs. George R. Pearkes, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor. Seated with Mrs. Pearkes at the head table were the hostess, Mrs. Charman; president and co-convenor, Mrs. J. A. Wallace; co-convenor Mrs. D. J. Hunter and Mrs. F. Sparks of the YM-YWCA.

If guests' will power was tested to the breaking point with the delicious tea that featured strawberry shortcake, they were able to appease their conscience by strolling through the grounds, shopping at the home cooking stall, buying raffle tickets, and choosing from 'trees' that bloomed with the most realistic artificial corsages ever created.

Other conveners who helped make the affair an unqualified success were Mrs. D. T. Burr, Mrs. H. O. Past, Mrs. A. D. Avery, Mrs. R. Ellis, Mrs. N. A. McDiarmid, Mrs. D. L. Telford and Mrs. J. H. Williams.

Proceeds of Wednesday's party have permitted the auxiliary to completely finance the $3,000 furnishing project at the new 'Y' building and will provide funds for sending four children to camp this summer.

COMMON TARIFF BARRIER IS MAIN TENSION POINT

Dr. Perry Describes Problems Faced in East Africa

The problems, both well-known and "behind the scenes," facing East Africa were discussed by Dr. G. Neil Perry, Wednesday evening, when he addressed the University Women's Club of Victoria.

Speaking at the annual dinner meeting in Holyrood House, Dr. Perry, deputy minister of education, stressed that the problems now being tackled by Uganda, Kenya and Tanzania centre around the "common market" or common tariff barrier which surrounds the three countries, yet does not come between them. The speaker had recently served as an economic adviser in this area, on the invitation of the governments of East Africa.

In the colonial days, said the speaker, the economies of the three countries were administered by a "legislative assembly" of the high commission of East Africa, who managed the common services, such as communications.

Although they didn't have the power to establish policy, they had the authority to carry it out, and in time, this caused "discontent" and "resentment" among the countries' leaders.

Then came independence. "The question was," said Dr. Perry, "what to do with the common currency?"

Currency was controlled by advisers from the Bank of England under a South African currency board. Other questions arose: What to do with the high commission; what about future economic development; should each of the three countries have a separate or common currency?

Suggestions came from all over, continued the speaker, and it was decided to form a common services organization, EACSO. In the case of banks, he said, the suggestion was that each state should have a separate bank with the heads of these to sit on a regional bank board.

The problems now being faced by the three countries "may seem to Canadians to be petty," said Dr. Perry.

The prime minister of Kenya appears as though he wanted to keep industries controlled by "foreign — European and Asiatic" interests in the country while the head of Tanzania was trying to remove foreign interest by attempting to gain African-controlled industry. The native population of Kenya had increased at a tremendous rate during the years and natives with educations under Grade 7 level were pouring into the cities, unskilled and unlearned. Skilled foreign labor was necessary to keep industry going.

Kenya was also "a fertile ground for Communism," said Dr. Perry.

Following his address, the speaker showed slides illustrating East Africa from a European and a native point of view. He was introduced by Mrs. D. R. McLeod and thanked by Mrs. S. G. Gibbins.

In her report, treasurer Mrs. A. W. Hobbs noted that receipts for the year totalled $2,211.40 with disbursements of $1,831.48. Bank balance was $379.92.

Balance of the contingency fund was $240, she said, and scholarship fund balance totalled $700.

President Mrs. R. A. Fraser announced that the Misses Edna Shepherd and Gabrielle Seidel had been awarded the club's two scholarships and that a special $70 scholarship had been given to a student at the Victoria summer school of music.

She also reported on two events coming up: The Canadian Federation of University Women Council meeting in Halifax next month, with Miss Margaret Lowe as club representative, and the Alberta-British Columbia regional conference in Kelowna, to be held in September.

Mrs. Fraser was re-elected as president. Also serving on the club executive for the second time are Mrs. J. W. McCammon, first vice-president; Mrs. D. South, second; Mrs. J. E. Browne, recording secretary; Miss Frances Peacock, corresponding; Mrs. V. Smith, study group convener; Miss Love, federation representative.

New officers elected are Mrs. J. R. Le Huquet, social convener; Mrs. E. A. Myles, publicity, and Mrs. R. M. Adamson, treasurer. Past president is Mrs. J. L. Andrews.

NOTED IN DIRECTOR'S REPORT

NEW CANADIANS HELPED BY VON

The interest taken in new Canadians by the staff of the Victorian Order of Nurses was noted by director Miss Elizabeth Riddell in her report at the recent meeting of the board of directors of the VON, held in Spencerhouse.

She spoke of the pleasure the visits by the nurses gave to the new Canadians and remarked that the nurses adjust their visits to periods when the husband is home, as he can usually interpret to the wife, many of whom speak very little English.

Miss Riddell announced that a total of 2,046 visits had been made with 1,520 being for nursing care. There were 21 night calls made, she said, and 73 hospital referrals.

It was announced that VON director-in-chief, Miss Jean Leask had been a guest, recently on Dr. Charlotte Whitton's program, "Dear Charlotte."

Car mileage had decreased over the month, it was reported, and total operating costs per mile had reached the lowest in two and one-half years. It was announced that Miss Riddell and Miss Betty Short had attended the recent annual meeting of the Silver Threads Service. Dr. Glen Hamilton, first director of the service, was speaker and outlined the services for the elderly and "meals on wheels" for shut-ins, developed in England.

President J. B. Barnum spoke on the annual VON meeting held in Ottawa and reported that Dr. G. D. W. Cameron, Ottawa, had been elected president of the order. Speakers were Hon. Allan MacEachern, minister of health and welfare and Dr. John Hastings, associate professor of the school of hygiene at the University of Toronto, who emphasized the changing picture of health care in Canada and stressed that the VON has an important role to play in home care of hospital cases and should expand.

It was announced that the provincial annual meeting would be held in West Vancouver on Friday, May 27. Guest speaker will be Dr. McCreary, dean of medicine at the University of British Columbia.

Car mileage had decreased over the month, it was reported, and total operating costs per

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Don't Let Birthday Make You Think You're Aging

For the fourth consecutive year President Johnson proclaimed May Senior Citizens Month in America. He called upon all federal, state and local governments, in partnership with private and voluntary organizations, to join in a community effort to make life not only more pleasant but more meaningful for the older members of the nation.

Just a year ago this month I had the pleasure of visiting Chattanooga, Tenn., as the guest of the Chattanooga Times and the Senior Neighbors of Chattanooga. To say that they have done an outstanding job there is to put it lightly. It was thrilling to visit the senior citizens air-conditioned and well-equipped house and to observe the many activities in progress. It is not only a place to meet people and make friends, to enjoy social life, but a place for learning and serving. Similar projects are springing up all over the country.

Too often older people tend to retire from life because they feel that they are no longer needed, because they are lonely. This is damaging to their health and it is a great waste of wisdom and experience and skill.

In the United States there is a great movement to aid the older person, to retrain him or her for employment, to increase the opportunity for adult education, provide advice and help in every category, in fact to "add life to added years" and to promote "Age in Action." The newly established administration on aging within the department of health, education and welfare, will serve as the central federal agency for all facets of aging.

Many employers are now recognizing the advantages of employing the older worker.

Community programs want the older volunteer workers because of their skills, warmth and sympathy, patience and experience.

Wherever you live, don't allow birthdays to change your outgoing attitude, to make you feel that you are no longer useful. Your community needs you as much or more than you need it.

OXFORD BANS SHORT SKIRTS

OXFORD, England (AP)—The girls at Oxford have been ordered not to wear the currently fashionable short, short skirts under their academic gowns during examinations.

Said Dean Mary Proudfoot of Somerville, the women's college: "Short skirts are rather fun. But the girls would look incongruous in academic dress with skirts half way up their thighs. The skirts might also take the men's minds off their exams."

Men and women take their examinations together.

Education Aid Being Combined

Single Branch To Co-ordinate Assistance to Universities

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal aid to education is being brought under one roof for the first time.

A small branch is quietly taking shape in the department of State Secretary Judy LaMarsh to plan and co-ordinate various programs to assist higher education.

Ottawa spends more than $250,000,000 annually in this field; but the money goes out through a maze of specialized programs run by about 20 departments and agencies.

No Action Now On Mink Farm Applications

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Wednesday he will not act immediately on two applications for mink farms in Metchosis which drew opposition from a 307-name petition.

"I don't propose to make a decision on either of the applications at the present time," he said. "This would be spot-zoning which I am against."

"When zoning principles have been established, then I can rule on the basis of principles instead of on the basis of individual applications."

One application was for establishment of a new mink farm and the other for extension of an existing one in the Metchosis-Langford-Colwood area now under study by the provincial advisory planning board for a zoning plan.

Ecuador Exile Ended

GUAYAQUIL (Reuters)—Former president Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra returned to Ecuador Tuesday after five years of voluntary exile and said he will make a bid for a fifth term as president. He left the country in November, 1961, after his fourth term was abruptly terminated following several weeks of unrest in which some 100 persons were killed or severely wounded. No date has been set for elections.

Now three senior officials headed by Under-Secretary of State Ernest Steele have been assigned the task of analyzing federal aid and advising the government on future needs.

They are busy preparing material for the federal-provincial conference in Victoria (June 16-18), when Prime Minister Pearson will propose increased federal aid to universities.

Mr. Pearson announced in January that per-capita operating grants will go up to about $100,000,000 in the next academic year from $39,000,000 last year. He called this an interim step and a permanent aid formula will be proposed at the Victoria talks.

The prime minister also promised during last fall's election campaign that his government would distribute $10,000,000 annually in university scholarships and increase the $40,000,000 student loan fund.

These programs and others will be co-ordinated or administered directly by a $20,000-a-year official to be appointed soon by Miss LaMarsh.

He will be assisted by Christopher Gill, formerly on the staff of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada and a research assistant to the committee of experts headed by Dean Vincent Bladen that last fall recommended a massive boost in federal aid to post-secondary education.

Jean-Marc Hamel, a career civil servant, is working with the education section on a temporary basis. The section is seeking to cut duplication and apply administrative standards to aid programs carried out by the National Research Council, the Canada Council, Medical Research Council, health department, technical training branch and other federal agencies.

This was recommended by the Bladen commission, which found that uniform procedures and accurate, up-to-date statistics were almost non-existent in education assistance.

THEY ARE one and the same. Actress Sophia Loren is easily recognizable but she is also the 80-year-old lady in the background from the film Lady L. The Italian actress starred Wednesday night at a photographic exhibit of her film career presented at the Museum of Modern Art in New York. (AP Wirephoto.)

Vacancies A-Plenty On Ferry to Rupert

There is still plenty of room in the Queen of Prince Rupert.

Monty Aldous, general manager of the B.C. Ferry Authority, made this statement today to offset rumors that the Queen is "booked solid" for the next three months.

"I don't know where people get this idea," Mr. Aldous said. "The truth is there is plenty of room aboard the Queen all through the summer."

"We have a large number of advance bookings for June, July and August, but ships carrying 430 passengers don't sell out as quickly as that."

Mr. Aldous has just returned from the maiden voyage of the new government ferry from Kelsey Bay, Vancouver Island, to Prince Rupert and back.

"Everyone had a marvelous time," he said. "The stabilizers are an effective antidote to sea-sickness, and there is only one area where the ship rolls a little—and that is in Queen Charlotte Sound."

"The scenery is glorious." The Queen of Prince Rupert offers sleeping accommodation for 282 passengers and 430 passengers in all. The voyage from Kelsey Bay to Prince Rupert takes 19 hours.

One-way fare is $30 for a foot passenger; $60 for car and driver.

Stock Firm Accused Of Religious Bias

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for the Quebec labor department said Wednesday there is a "strong possibility" charges will be laid against a firm of Montreal investment consultants following complaints by two job applicants that they were discriminated against because of their religion.

The spokesman said a report by Judge Alexandre Bastien chairman of the minimum wages board, which has responsibility for administering the 1964 Quebec anti-discrimination act, now is in the hands of the department of justice.

The department will announce its decision before the end of the week on whether criminal charges are to be made.

Brian Mulrooney, lawyer for the investment consultants, Laferty Harwood and Co. Ltd., said the complaint against his clients by two persons of the Jewish faith who had applied for a job with the firm, was due to an "unfortunate misunderstanding."

Mr. Mulrooney said: "I can make no comment on the case as it still is sub judice."

"However, the background simply is that the firm placed an advertisement in the Montreal Star last December for someone to work on the floor of the Montreal Stock Exchange. There were 35 applications, including one from a Mr. Arnold Kurtz and another from a Mr. Arnold Wolman."

"Unfortunately, in the interviews which followed, the ques-

STRONGER BEE STRAIN IN MONEY BELT

He's Strapped to a Stinging Problem

LONDON (CP)—About 6,000 bee eggs and larvae will be strapped around the shirt of a retired Toronto schoolteacher Friday in a transatlantic flight that may herald development of a stronger and more productive Canadian bee.

J. P. Stein, 63, said he will carry the eggs and larvae "in the same way as people carry money in a money belt." He will wear the belt around his body over his shirt to provide sufficient body heat to make sure the valuable cargo is not chilly.

"The eggs and larvae will be in small tubes or containers," he said today in a telephone interview from Buckfast Abbey in Devon where the consignment is being prepared. "I'll carry some of these containers in my shirt pocket but most of them will be in the belt."

Buckfast Abbey is world-famous as a bee centre. The strains there include races from Yugoslavia, Austria, Greece and Turkey.

"Our basic Canadian bee-of-the-Italian race — needs to be improved," said Stein, who has just completed a bee-inspection tour of the Continent.

WANTS STRONGER BEE

"We are looking for a stronger, more fertile bee to improve honey production and pollination of plants. Better pollination will give us more fruit and other plant life."

The eggs and larvae Stein carries to Canada will go to the agriculture department of the University of Guelph which will launch a cross-breeding experiment.

Normally, said Stein, Canada does not allow bee imports. He will fly Friday morning from London to New York; get immediate U.S. agriculture department clearance to enter the U.S. with his consignment; then hop on a plane for Buffalo, N.Y., where he hopes a representative of the Canadian agriculture department will meet him to approve his entry into Canada.

He expects to enter Canada Friday night and from the border will immediately speed to Guelph, getting no rest until the consignment is delivered and placed in the laboratory.

Some of the eggs and larvae later will be sent from Guelph to Baton Rouge, La., to help the U.S. in its bee cross-breeding.

Navy to Show Off Powerful Air Arm

The public will be given a chance to see the armed forces at work next month.

Their first opportunity comes a week on Saturday when the navy's VU-33 air squadron holds open house at Pat Bay Airport.

Between 1 p.m. and 4:30, visitors can tour the base to observe a variety of aircraft on display.

In addition they will be treated to a fire-fighting display and a fly-past of planes from the VU-33 squadron, VS-880 and RCAF units from Comox.

A week later, on June 11, it's Armed Forces Day in Victoria.

Starting 1:30 p.m., bands, floats and some 500 personnel from all three services will begin a parade from The Bay to Beacon Hill Park.

With the parade over, the public will be able to watch

special displays at Clover Point.

Among these will be a mock periscope through which they can get a "Captain's eye view" of the surrounding area and television monitors enabling them to watch naval divers at work underwater a short distance off-shore.

The navy will also feature a torpedo display while the army features a field command headquarters, complete with displays of ammunition, an industrial safety display and marching demonstrations.

A military band will perform throughout the afternoon.

Later on, aircraft of the RCAF and RCN will stage a fly-past.

Four navy ships, representing various classes of warships, will be anchored off the Point.

Meanwhile, open house will be held at HMC Dockyard, Canadian Forces Base Esquimalt and headquarters of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles at Work Point Barracks.

The day will end with a band concert in the bandshell at Beacon Hill Park.

ENOUGH FOR A SNACK

A pelican's pouch holds 3½ alumnus still living in the Marigallons.

GRAND COUNCILLOR of Pacific Northwest region of United Commercial Travellers of America, Victoria businessman John B. Priestley, will preside over regional convention June 2-4 at Empress Hotel. Among 400 expected will be principal speaker Rev. William Hill of Nanaimo and Past Supreme Councillor of the U.C.T., E. P. Penrose of Salt Lake City. Convention program will end with Grand Councillor's banquet and ball.

CITY STUDYING TERMIS

Hydro Offers Land Swap

B.C. Hydro has offered Victoria 48.9 acres of land in exchange for 31.6 acres required for the power company to string a power line across the southern most portion of Elk Lake Park.

Hydro has made several bids to obtain permission to build the new transmission line but has been rejected by city council on the grounds that the line, taking power to Langford, would ruin the park area.

The new land-swap bid was greeted with mixed reactions by council members in informal conference in the mayor's office Wednesday.

Parks administrator Herbert Warren pointed out that though the offer sounded fine on the surface the land being talked they are offering in exchange. "Our land (the southern part of the park) is worth four or five times the value of the land Hydro a final answer."

VICTORIA BACKS
SWIMMING POOL

Victoria will back the Colwood Metehosin bid to build a Centennial project swimming pool under the auspices of the Capital Regional Board.

The two districts, lacking the organized authority to build the pool, have twice asked the regional board to lend its blessing to the project and have twice been rejected.

Main objection to the proposal that the regional group accept the responsibility — on paper — was that the board was established to acquire parkland for the regional district not sponsor individual efforts.

Colwood and Metehosin had pleaded that without an organized and duly recognized government body to back their effort the pool could not be built. They had also stated that the board would in no way be responsible for building costs or operating losses.

SUPPORT BID

Following an informal meeting of city council in the mayor's office Wednesday afternoon Mayor A. W. Toome said the city would support the bid of the rural communities.

Other business discussed during the informal gathering included a resolution the city will place before the Vancouver Island Municipalities annual meeting in Campbell River Friday.

Victoria will be asking other municipalities to support a united resolution for presentation to the Union of British Columbia Municipalities which will request the provincial government to consider the use of existing population figures when making per capita grants rather than the figures of the last official census.

1961 CENSUS

In the past per capita grants to municipalities have been based on 1961 census figures to the detriment of Victoria taxpayers.

Victoria will send its May 24 float to the Portland Rose Festival in June.

Earlier council had rejected a request from the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association to display the float in the parade. But a further request with the association promising to look after the transportation tab won city approval.

The cost of entertaining mayors and municipal officers from across Canada next month will come to $3,500. But the Intermunicipal Committee has agreed to share the cost.

The mayors and municipalities convention, to be held in Vancouver June 6-10, will wind up with a one day tour of Victoria and surrounding districts.

PRESSURE ON ALL SIDES

Occupation Forces May Leave Germany

BONN (AP)—After more than 20 years in Germany the armies that defeated Adolf Hitler—British, American, Soviet and French—are coming under pressure to pull out or at least to thin their forces.

Experts have fought for and against such a move over the years. Now it may be coming of itself.

The United States needs more of its trained troops in Viet Nam. Fifteen thousand men are being withdrawn but that still leaves 215,000, official figures show.

Britain also is feeling the strain of its military obligations in Africa, the Middle East and Southeast Asia. There has been talk of reducing its 51,000-man Army of the Rhine.

There are about 9,760 Canadian servicemen in West Germany. There has been no pressure for reduction of Canadian forces, however.

Both the U.S. and British governments say the West Germans are not living up to their pledges to buy American and British goods. These purchases were promised to offset the spending of American and British troops in West Germany.

The United States and Britain have deficits in their balance of international payments and need to sell more goods abroad. Chancellor Ludwig Erhard of West Germany was in Britain this week, trying to do something about the problem. He and Prime Minister Wilson failed to agree.

One obvious remedy: Withdraw troops, so that there will be less British and American spending, and less need for West German spending to offset it.

President Charles de Gaulle is threatening to pull French troops out for a different reason—his quarrel with the rest of the Atlantic Alliance over unified commands. He is withdrawing from these commands. He says his forces, officially

Truscott Case Delay

OTTAWA (CP)—There now are doubts that the Steven Truscott appeal will be heard before October by the Supreme Court of Canada. D. H. Christie, head of the justice department's criminal law section, said Wednesday he believes Arthur Martin, Truscott's lawyer, will agree with him that the appeal will not be ready during the next few months. Earlier reports said the appeal would be heard in July.

Second Class Mail Costs Hit by MPs

OTTAWA (CP)—The post office department was raked over the coals by the Commons public accounts committee Wednesday on heavy losses incurred each year in the delivery of second class mail.

The MPs were supported by evidence from Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson that second class mail—newspapers and periodicals—cost the post office $35,000,000 more to deliver in the 1963-64 fiscal year than it received in postage.

Mr. Henderson told the committee he has pointed out in his last 10 reports that post office deficits could be more than wiped out if the loss on second class mail were eliminated.

He said he noted that the policy behind the low rates for newspapers and periodicals was to encourage the dissemination of news.

Jack Bigg (PC—Athabasca) said first class mail should not be used to subsidize second

Pay Disputes At Dockyards Under Study

OTTAWA (CP)—Associate Defence Minister Cadieux said today he is willing to meet the Halifax dockyard Trades and Labor Council at any time to discuss employees' grievances. He noted at a Commons defence committee meeting devoted to problems of the Halifax and Esquimalt, B.C., dockyards that he had met the Halifax council last year and is ready to do so again.

Mr. Cadieux said he hopes that job reclassification will solve many of the current pay problems at the dockyards before collective bargaining comes into effect Oct. 1 this year.

K. R. Scobie, director-general of civilian personnel in the defence department, said in reply to Douglas Harkness, former Conservative defence minister, that integration has resulted in about 15 per cent of workers at Esquimalt receiving higher pay for equal work than the other 85 per cent. The situation at Halifax was the reverse, with about 15 per cent of the workers receiving less.

from solution—which would be delivered to their plants by huge bulk carriers.

Mr. Bonner said that because of the great distance involved, conveyor belts were out of the question but a pipeline could prove to be the most economic transport system.

TAKE SEVERAL MONTHS

However, the studies will take several months to complete and in the meantime the initial contract should be signed using the CPR rail lines with a rider enabling the switch to pipeline later if it proves feasible and is built.

He said if Crow's Nest is forced to pour the heavy investment required to develop a rail connection through the U.S. along with new cargo-loading wharves, it would not be likely to invest in a transport system through B.C. later.

'PATRIOTIC, WISE'

"From the national point of view, it would be both patriotic and wise to carry this coal even at cost," he said, referring to the CPR.

Mr. Bonner said the immense size of the contract would not only strain cargo-loading facilities in Vancouver but also the railway itself, thus arousing the serious interest in the pipeline.

But whether the railway service was expanded or a pipeline built to handle the long-term hauling needs, there would be major maritime transport developments in store for whichever port became the terminal.

UBC Plans Degree Honor For Martin

Honorary degrees will be awarded next month by the University of British Columbia to six persons, including a federal cabinet minister, a Group of Seven artist and a B.C. deputy minister.

Degrees will also be awarded to nearly 3,000 graduating students at the university's spring congregation June 1, 2 and 3.

Receiving honorary doctor of laws (LL.D.) degrees will be external affairs minister Paul Martin, Canadian painter A. Y. Jackson, and B.C. deputy minister of education, Dr. G. Neil Perry.

Martha E. A. Moscrop, pioneer social worker, and Lloyd A. Royal of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission will also receive honorary doctor of laws degrees. An honorary doctor of science (D.Sc.) degree will go to 1963 Nobel prize winner Sir John Eccles, physiology professor at the Australian National University.

Degree-granting ceremonies will take place in UBC's War Memorial Gymnasium with university chancellor Dr. Phyllis G. Ross officiating.

New chancellor John M. Buchanan, who succeeds Dr. Ross, will be sworn in by Lieut.-Gov. Pearkes at the end of degree ceremonies June 3.

A list of Vancouver Island students receiving degrees will appear in Friday's Times.

HUNGARY

Desperate
To Renew
Its Economy

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
BUDAPEST (AP)—Hungary's Communist government is cautiously brewing a capitalist elixir to rejuvenate its economic structure, crippled by nearly 20 years of Marxist planning.

At Communist party rallies, in newspapers, in crowded street cars and in smoke-filled cafes, the topic of the day is economy.

Men and women talk of real wages, incentive bonuses, market prices, supply and demand—a strange vocabulary in a nation where Marxism remains the official policy.

Government and party officials deny they plan to introduce any facets of capitalism in their system.

"As long as there is no opportunity for exploitation, when the means of production are socially owned, there can be no talk of capitalism," is the official explanation.

Regardless of the vocabulary, the plans are there and not all Hungarians are happy about them. They involve decentralization of the cumbersome economic structure, a new system to set prices and an incentive scheme for workers and plant managers.

The changes imply increases in prices—many of them hitherto subsidized by the regime which decided that it can no longer afford to do it.

SHIFT FORCE

They also mean major shifts in the labor force to fields which many Hungarians have shunned—such as public transport and the building industry.

"Young people these days want to be hairdressers," snapped a Hungarian official. "Well, at this stage we cannot afford it."

When the ruling Communist party took stock of the country's economic situation it found it desperately wanting.

To keep the 10,000,000 Hungarians reasonably calm after the abortive 1956 uprising, the regime had embarked on a number of measures designed to raise the standard of living. Living standards rose faster than the comparatively poor country could afford.

At the same time, the quality of products decreased. Hungary, earning one-third of its income from exports, found itself paying more to produce some export products than they brought in exchange.

The truth was simply that the Hungarian product was not competitive, not only on Western markets but also among other Communist nations.

There was also the problem of overproduction—some goods manufactured had little or no demand. Eager factory officials did everything to fill—or exceed—their quotas, and millions of products were wasted.

PREPARE BASIS

Last year, a team of 121 experts headed by Rezo Nyers prepared the basis for a reform that may take between eight and 10 years—if it is completely carried out.

Because of the nature of the changes and the deeply embedded concept of the welfare state after years of Marxist rule, the progress will have to be slow—and painful.

The reforms begin in January with a 50-per-cent increase in the price of meat—a staple item on the menu of the average Hungarian family.

This will be followed by boosts in the prices of public transport and several other products.

More sweeping changes will come in 1967-68. They may involve an increase in rents—normally an item costing a minimal amount in the Marxist system.

To alleviate the increases, the government decided to raise salaries of several groups of employees, mainly in industry, and of teachers.

Expo Boss Off
On World Tour

MONTREAL (CP)—Pierre Dupuy, commissioner-general for the 1967 Montreal world's fair, said Tuesday he will leave this week on a tour which will take him to Russia, the Middle East, Algeria, Morocco, Nigeria and Ghana.

He told a Montreal service club he will try to persuade Russian officials to send the Bolshoi ballet and opera troupe to Expo 67 though they are under "great pressure" to decline.

SON of a wealthy and socially prominent Burlington, Calif., family, Bruce Carlisle, 18, has been arrested by San Francisco police today for the $56,000 jewel theft at his parents' Pacific Heights home. ## DEEP FREEZE METHOD

Russians Develop Bone Transplants

MOSCOW (AP)—Doctors have developed new method of transplanting bones, Pravda reported today.

The Soviet Communist party newspaper said the method can save some victims of bone tumors and other ailments from losing an arm or leg through amputation.

Pravda said the method, under preparation since 1946, had been worked out by doctors of the Sitenko Orthopaedic and Traumatological Research Institute in the Ukrainian city of Kharkov.

One basic problem was given as biological incompatibility between the bone to be transplanted and the bone to which it is joined on the patient. The newspaper said this was overcome by deep freezing of the bones to be transplanted at a

U.S. Claims Cuban Ignored Warning Shot

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. defence department said Tuesday an armed Cuban soldier was shot Saturday night after penetrating the perimeter of the Guantanamo naval base in Cuba and ignoring a warning shot fired by a U.S. marine sentry.

The statement came after Cuban Armed Forces Minister Raul Castro claimed in a Havana speech that Luis Ramirez Lopez was killed by U.S. guards at the U.S. base.

The state department statement said:

"At about 7:10 p.m. May 21, an armed Cuban soldier was observed, who had penetrated the perimeter fence at the Guantanamo naval base, 'A warning shot was fired by a U.S. marine sentry which the Cuban ignored.'"

"When the Cuban infiltrator ignored the warning shot, a second shot was fired which resulted in the wounding of the Cuban."

temperature of minus 70 degrees centigrade and preserving them in this state.

The problem of actually joining the bones was solved by a so-called "lock method." Holes are cut in the preserved bone and it is fitted into the local bone so firmly that no fixing material is needed. The bones heal together, much as a normal bone would heal after a fracture.

Pravda said this method of transplantation has been carried out successfully 250 times.

'Enemy Can't Be Bombed Into Honest Negotiation'

WASHINGTON (WP) — American strategy in Viet Nam came reeling off the analyst's couch with low marks from a psychiatrist-psychologist panel at an unusual Senate hearing Wednesday.

In an admitted experiment that produced some raised eyebrows, chairman J. William Fulbright (D — Ark.) of the Senate foreign relations committee, conducted an inquiry into "some of the psychological aspects of international relations."

The Viet Nam "hawks" on the committee, anticipating, rightfully as it turned out, no comfort for their case, either absented themselves or listened in relative silence.

'DOVES' WARY

Even the committee "doves" showed some wariness with the three clinically expert witnesses, and vice versa. But the cause of "de-escalating" the Vietnamese war dominated the day.

"Is it possible," asked Dr. Charles Osgood, professor of communications and psychology at the University of Illinois, "to escalate the intensity of attack upon an opponent with one hand while simultaneously holding out an olive branch in the other?"

"An opponent," said Osgood, "can be bombed into surrender, or even into non-existence, but he cannot be bombed into honest negotiations."

Dr. Jerome Frank, professor of psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, similarly told the committee: "People who are fighting for their ideals seldom if ever can be forced into surrendering by punishment."

He said the Vietnamese war "has assumed an ideological character similar to the Holy Wars of former times, and this has ominous implications."

"The notion," said Dr. Frank, "that one can cause people to abandon their ideologies—by inflicting pain on them should have died in Rome with the Christian martyrs."

Dr. Brock Chisholm of Victoria, former director-general of the World Health Organization and former president of the World Federation for Mental Health, cautioned about the States involvement in Viet Nam and elsewhere.

The United States, Chisholm said, cannot escape the fact that non-white nations are suspicious of the white race.

An underlying image of the foreign "exploiter" exists, he said, even where there is "a degree of co-operation." In Viet Nam, he said, the United States tends to receive some of the hostility about foreigners that in the past has been directed against the Chinese and the French.

MUNICIPAL HALL SOLD

Saanich decided to sell its old municipal hall Wednesday night.

An offer of $9,000 by the Saanich Peninsula Credit Union for the Royal Oak hall was accepted by council.

The old building was vacated last fall when the municipal staff moved into the new hall at Swan Lake.

A spokesman for the credit union, Henry Robinson, said all the space won't be needed and the group is "quite willing" to allow unused space for community use.

RELEASE of former Hitler aide Rudolph Hess would be considered by Britain, officials said in London today. Any decision to free him from Spandau prison in West Berlin on humane grounds would have to be taken by all Big Four powers—the U.S., U.K., U.S.S.R. and France.

Volunteers Awarded Pins

Presented with gold pin for 500 hours of volunteer service to the Cerebral Palsy Association at an awards ceremony held Wednesday at the War Amps Hall was Mrs. G. Walkie.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

OCEAN ROWERS

Winds Not 'Puffin' Right Way

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—There's nothing wrong with Puffin a westerly wind couldn't cure.

That was the word Wednesday from the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Conifer concerning the 15-foot rowboat in which two English journalists set out last Saturday to cross the Atlantic.

The Puffin was spotted by the Conifer about 10½ miles off Cape Charles on Virginia's eastern shore, its occupants in good condition.

David Johnstone, 34, and John Hoare, 29, were not ready to give up, said Lieut. T. D. Keith the cutter's executive officer. He said their own needs were a dry chart and favorable winds. When they set out from Virginia Beach, the two rowers had hoped to reach St. Ives, England, in less than 55 days. But they have been hampered by southeast winds.

Rules Changing In Teacher Game

By JACK HUTTON

A few weeks from now a young teacher is being tested at several centres in the United States.

Nine Projects

The state of Washington, the first to try a full-scale experiment in internship for teachers, is trying nine different projects over a three-year period. They vary from having the students act as inter-teachers to rotating them between college and the classroom.

Simon Fraser University in British Columbia seems to be the Canadian trailblazer in encouraging student teachers to try their wings under the supervision of senior teachers.

Its year-round semester system (three semesters of four months each) allows students to attend university, then practise teaching, then return to the campus to assess what happened in the classroom.

"That period in the classroom might convince some that teaching is not for them," said Dr. A. R. MacKinnon, Simon Fraser's professor of education. "It so, that is the time to find out — not later."

Because the period of teacher-training is the chief weapon that each newcomer brings to the classroom, how good is it? How do our Canadian schools rate?

Worthwhile
And, speaking personally, it was one of the most worthwhile conferences likely to be held in Canada this year. I only wish a few of the fledgling teachers graduating this year could have been there.

If they'd been there, they would have heard a word usually associated with the medical profession — "intern" — applied to themselves.

Because after decades of requiring teachers to leap into the firing line on the first day they enter school, we're finally starting to realize that there might be a better way of starting them.

The chief spokesman for this point-of-view was C. D. Owens, the forceful general secretary for the British Columbia Teachers' Federation. Why not, he asked, give each newcomer to the profession a senior teacher as supervisor?

What he suggested isn't new. A new deal for scared, beginning teachers is being tested at several centres in the United States.

The Wonderful

World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

The amount of heat and humidity a dog can stand is variable. Breed is one consideration: the short-nosed breeds (i.e. Boxer or Peke) have more trouble eliminating heat by panting, and are therefore less tolerant of high temperatures. The fat dog — any breed — is susceptible, as are the heavy-coated.

Dogs are best protected by: (1) Providing shade (and this all day, regardless of the sun's position). (2) Providing adequate water, preferably cool (3) Allowing the dog to rest (exercise may quickly overload the cooling capacity of the body). And (4) feeding lightly during hot weather, and feeding less fat.

Cookie probably prefers a water chaser with his food, but a wood turtle can chop it down dry. You didn't enumerate your red-eared rat, but a wood turtle spending most of his time on dry land prefers a diet high in fruit and vegetables. If lounging in a pool a good part of the time, this species often leans toward fish and meat. Snails are a welcome snack any time.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My daughter told me that they use the Pap test in cats. I think she was just kidding but I went along with it. Since then, I've been wondering if they really do and if cats suffer from cancer of the uterus? — M.A.

DEAR M.A.: Malignant tumors of the uterus are extremely rare in cats. The Papanicolaou smear test may be used in the female feline to determine the stage of the estrus cycle.

DEAR DR. MILLER: After buying some worm medicine at a shop, I have been having second thoughts. I want to know if it is all right to worm a 10-week-old puppy at home? I would do nothing to endanger it, but didn't think it would hurt. Am I correct? — L.H.

DEAR L.H.: Depends. Veterinarians often prescribe worm medication to be used at home. However, the difference is that the doctor first has a look at the pup to be sure it needs worming, and to determine what type of worms are involved. He also makes sure that the gastrointestinal tract of the pup, in particular, and the rest of its anatomy, in general, are in good enough condition to handle the worming without a severe reaction. He also keeps any potential reaction to a minimum by using the most effective and the least toxic worm medicine. Another vital reason for taking the puppy in first is to allow the doctor to begin the vaccination program against distemper and hepatitis, in particular (and perhaps against leptospirosis).

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is there such a thing as a "bite-prone" human? If so, why? I'm asking because my husband has been bitten three times by dogs in the last three years. — F.D.

DEAR F.D.: There are from 600,000 to 1,000,000 people bitten each year by man's best friend. On a percentage basis, your husband is getting more than his fair share. Actually, there are more bite-prone dogs than humans. The punctured people are often in hazardous job classifications: i.e., mail carriers and garbage men. Bites are often the result of deliberate or accidental provocation. (Except in the rare attack by a psychotic canine, most children bitten have strongly provoked the dog in the first place.) Your husband just could be one of those unfortunate who by his actions (or even odor, where fear is a factor) activates aggressions usually dormant in the dog.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by you and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Marie Vernon, age 12, of Gastonia, N.C., for her question:

Do all fish sleep?

Goldie the goldfish never takes an afternoon nap. From sunup to sundown, with eyes wide open, she fans her glamorous fins, gliding gracefully around and around her pond. You will never catch her asleep, even if you peep in on her during the night.

When we fall asleep, we shut out the ordinary sights and sounds around us and our minds rest from their daytime thoughts. The best time to sleep is during the quiet darkness of the night, and in order to remain sharp and smart, healthy and happy every person requires a goodly quota of sleep each night of the year. But there are astounding differences between a human being and a fish. He never falls asleep as we do and neither is he ever as wide awake as we are.

Life in the ocean is a strenuous strain between eating and being eaten, hunting and being hunted. The chase never ends and there is no rest from.

Hunts Day and Night
No fish sleeps as we do, but from time to time he must slow down and rest his body. Sometimes he sinks down and rests on the bottom where he seems to stay motionless. Most likely his fins are waving gently to circulate currents of water. He breathes by taking water into his mouth and streaming it out through his gills. A moving current helps send the water flowing effortlessly into his mouth. The eyelids of a fish are glassy windows and even while resting his staring eyes are never closed.

The shark and other prowlers of the deep hunt day and night. And for some reason life in the ocean takes on a quickened pace after dark. The herring, the mackerel and other small fishes cannot stop fleeing long enough to sleep. The ceaseless rush uses up energy. And the frantic fishes must keep going to find enough food to supply this energy. Day and night they live in a vague and simple-minded dream world in which sleep is unknown and unneeded.

Canada's New Justice Setup Criticized

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—The department of justice will remain Canada's law firm while the solicitor-general's office will deal with crime and correction, Solicitor-General Pennell told the Commons Wednesday.

He was defending a government reorganization that will shift responsibility for the RCMP, the penitentiaries service and the national parole board to the solicitor-general.

A registrar-general will handle patents, bankruptcies, the Combines Act and other commercial areas of justice.

Mr. Pennell said the war against crime deserves a separate and special ministry. Since the transfer was made Jan. 1, steps had been taken to increase RCMP efficiency.

He also argued that it is "foreign to the spirit of justice" to have police and prosecutors in the same department.

After two days of debate, the reorganization bill won second reading and went into clause-by-clause study. This continues today.

A highlight of the debate came when Raymond Langlois (Creditiste — Megantic) asked for an RCMP inquiry into the use of federal winter works funds in Notre-Dame-de-la Gueloupe, a Quebec village where he said "seven suicidal hangings" have taken place in the last 18 months.

Heward Graffley (PC—Brome — Missisquoi) said he hopes the reorganization will restore federal leadership.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood), Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) and Richard A. Bell (PC—Carleton), all lawyers, hit the transfer of the RCMP from justice to the solicitor-general's department.

Mr. Scott said "every possible degree of co-ordination is required between your police forces, yet here you seem to be moving in the exact opposite direction."

He said he and Mr. Brewin, as NDP counsel before the Ontario royal commission on organized crime, found lack of co-ordination among police forces is a big problem in fighting crime.

Mr. Bell referred to the emasculation and dismemberment of the justice department and said the effects would be calamitous.

He repeated the Conservative charge that, under the reorganization, Prime Minister Pearson is tailoring the jobs to fit his men.

Mr. Pennell answered that the reorganization won't mean division. The justice department would remain responsible for drafting legislation, criminal prosecution, preparations of legal opinions and conduct of government litigation.

"In other words, the department will remain the law firm for the government of Canada."

The reorganization would relieve justice ministers of what had become an enormous increase in their duties.

Brawler Guilty On Second Count

Gary Kelly of 3179 Alder has been found guilty of a second charge arising out of a brawl in a private home last Boxing Day. Wednesday in magistrate's court he was convicted of willfully causing damage over $50.

Kelly was convicted of assault at an earlier hearing.

He was remanded to May 31 for a pre-sentence report.

Kelly was an uninvited guest at the home of Joseph Rivard, 200 West Maddock Dec. 26, court was told.

Rivard testified that in an altercation involving Kelly a window was smashed, a Christmas tree, ornaments, and presents were wrecked, a new rug was ruined, a kitchen chair was smashed, leg of a coffee table was knocked off and walls were marked.

Cost of repairs was $111.16.

Ship Inquiry Set Up

LONDON (UPI) — The Labor government today set up a special court of inquiry to study merchant seamen's working conditions in an effort to halt the crippling 11-day-old maritime strike.

Labor Minister Ray Gunter told Parliament the court of inquiry, headed by Lord Pearson, will begin work immediately. Both employers and the National Union of Seamen (NUS) promised full co-operation.

Gunter's statement came a few hours after he met leaders of both sides in separate, private sessions.

He said the court's terms of reference included an inquiry into the immediate causes of the dispute; terms and conditions of service of seamen, taking into account the national interest; and relations between shipowners, officers and seamen.

Stern Warning Issued

LONDON (AP) — James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, stepped into the British seamen's strike today with a stern warning of the economic consequences.

Callaghan, speaking in the Commons, said the strike is setting back the time when Britain will be able to end its balance-of-payments deficit.

"I say to this house and to those engaged in the dispute that high wage increases in 1966 mean nothing but inflation."

"Hardly a day passes when I do not get advice that I should so manipulate the economy as to create widespread inflation and therefore unemployment."

Callaghan was referring to the governments prices-and-incomes policy which seeks to peg wage increases to a maximum of three per cent.

The Trades Union Congress tied Wednesday without success to settle the dispute, which had made idle 538 ships and 16,132 men.

George Woodcock, general secretary of the congress, predicted the stoppage would last another month.

"By then," he said, "the situation will be very serious."

The 65,000-member National Union of Seamen is striking for a 40-hour week package deal which amounts to a 17-per-cent increase on the current basic wage of £15 ($45) for a 56-hour week.

Seaway Tieup Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) said today the union will urge its 1,200 seaway workers to reject a federal conciliation board report and go on strike.

The report issued Wednesday night recommends an immediate seven per cent wage increase and a further seven per cent next year.

JAPAN EYEING ALBERTA OIL

TOKYO (Reuters) — Alberta oil may some day flow to the vast Japanese market as an alternative to present supplies from the Middle East, Russell Patrick, Alberta's industries and development minister, said here tonight.

"Japanese interest is high in co-operating with development of Alberta resources," the minister said.

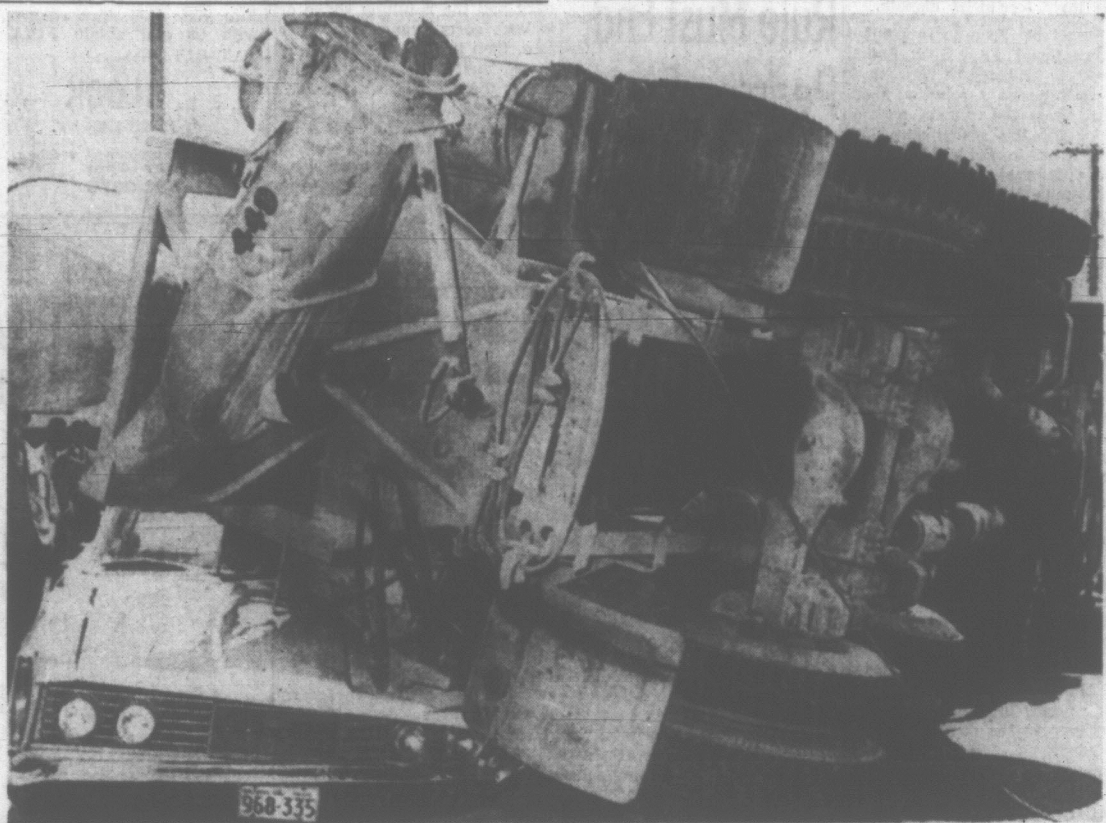

"Should joint schemes come into being, Japan could become a big market for our oil."

Aussie Students Protest Viet War

ADELAIDE, Australia (Reuters) — About 100 university students stormed the state headquarters of the ruling Liberal and Country parties here today in protest against the Viet Nam War. The demonstration, which blocked the entrance to the headquarters for an hour despite police appeals, also marked the death of the first Australian conscript in Viet Nam.

MINOR CUTS from flying glass were the only injuries suffered today by Mrs. M. F. Doan of London, Ont., when an empty 12-ton cement truck,

First to Arrive In City of Hue

HUE, South Viet Nam (CP) — A battalion of South Vietnamese army troops moved into Hue tonight to protect the U.S. consulate and three other American buildings in the city.

The battalion of 500 government troops carried full battle gear when they arrived in Hue aboard army trucks.

There had been no government troops in Hue, where anti-American demonstrators attacked the U.S. information service office earlier in the day, set fire to the building and burned books, shelves and tables. The building was closed and no Americans were injured.

About 40 students broke into the building and carried books, desks, chairs and tables outside and set fire to them.

Then they went back inside the modern, two-story building and burned everything they could see before moving on to a large American movie auditorium, where they set fire to the curtains.

DIDN'T INTERFERE

About 30 policemen standing outside made no attempt to stop the attack. Firemen called to the scene about 40 minutes after the fires began also made no attempt to quell the blazes. They confined their efforts to preventing the fires from spreading to neighboring buildings.

Both firemen and police said they were prevented from interfering in the raid by members of Hue "struggle force."

The move began when 1,000 students marched through the city after a meeting at Hue University's science faculty auditorium.

As they reached the building about 100 of them formed up in a column, but were restrained from advancing on the building by their leaders, one of whom wore a colt .45-calibre pistol on his hip.

Some of the marchers then broke away and stormed into

146 KILLED DURING WEEK

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. military spokesmen announced today 146 Americans were killed in action and 829 wounded last week, the highest Viet Nam casualty toll since the bloody Ia Drang Valley campaign six months ago.

The library through the main door as others stoned the building's plate-glass windows.

The incident lasted about 40 minutes and was watched by a crowd in the wide street outside.

Students scrawled a painted message on the sidewalk reading: "We strongly protest U.S. policy of supporting (Head of State Nguyen Van) Thieu and (Premier) Ky."

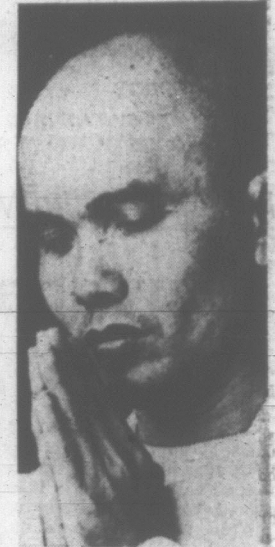

Reliable sources said they saw the militant Buddhist leader the Venerable Tri Quang in the crowd outside the building. The powerful monk, whose headquarters are in Hue, later broadcast an appeal over Hue radio asking Buddhists to go home.

Buu Ton, 23-year-old leader of the anti-government student "struggle committee," said afterward he thought the attack would force President Johnson to change his Viet Nam policy.

In Saigon U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge called the sacking a "distressing act."

"The destruction of a library and cultural centre is a distressing act," he said in a statement.

Big Baskets Foil U.S. Bomb Raids

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese reporters travelling in South Viet Nam said today the Americans cannot disrupt the Viet Cong supply lines despite repeated bombings.

The New China news agency quoted them as saying:

"Arms, ammunition and food supplies are being brought to the troops in the field day and night in big baskets on human backs along mountain trails, on bicycles, in ox-carts or captured trucks along jungle paths, or in junks through the ebbow of reefs."

"When American planes wing over, these streams of people and vehicles vanish into the jungle without a trace... when Americans succeed in cutting one line of communication... two or three new lines are quickly opened up by this uniformed transport corps."

MANHUNT IN BRITAIN

Convicts Escape As Feathers Fly

FORTSMOUTH, England (Reuters) — Police scoured the south of England today for five dangerous convicts who escaped from a police bus Wednesday.

Nine convicts overpowered guards and broke free while being driven from a court hearing in nearby Winchester to top-security Parkhurst prison on the Isle of Wight. Four were recaptured Wednesday night.

The home office said that as 13 prisoners were being driven from Winchester to Parkhurst one of the men suddenly shouted "right" and the men attacked and overpowered six prison guards.

The nine, some of them handcuffed together, dashed from the bus.

One witness said they crashed through a hedge, knocked over a chicken coop, then disappeared in a flurry of feathers and squawking chickens.

WERE IN CIVIES

The men were wearing civilian clothes for their court appearance. They testified in a case in which one prisoner was charged with wounding another.

The fugitives were serving sentences ranging from five to 10 years for crimes including shooting, robbery with violence and assault.

Two RAF helicopters soon began swooping low over woods and fields in the area.

Two were captured after being chased by policemen and a 19-year-old mechanic through fields and over farm fences. At one point, the youth hit one of the fleeing men with a brick.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A helicopter hit a 230,000-volt power line 120 miles north of here today, blacking out sections of north-central British Columbia.

The pilot of the machine, Dennis Light of Coquitlam, was missing.

Witnesses said the Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. machine was flying over Seton Lake when it hit the 5,000-foot-long line that feeds power from the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority plant at Bridge River, a few miles to the south.

Power outages were reported as far north as Prince George. Hydro spokesmen said it was not known when normal service would be restored.

But Williams Lake residents, fed by the line, said normal power was restored within about 1½ hours.

Witnesses said the pilot of the machine had just landed a passenger. He took off again and dipped suddenly, cut the wire, and fell into the lake. The broken line fell across the tracks of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway but was quickly moved.

The machine was reported to be lying upside down in the lake. The helicopter was being used by hydro for various line work. Two more helicopters were at the scene.

Communities fed by the line switched to emergency power where it was available. Prince George, the largest city north of Vancouver, use power-operated generators which satisfied about half the requirements of the city.

The Canadian National Telegraphs reported service was interrupted by the outage. But normal service was restored shortly.

HUNDRED MILLION FOR RELIEF

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is putting almost $100,000,000 worth of earthquake relief into the stricken central Asian city of Tashkent, Tass reported today. The news agency disclosed its first total figures on the relief program, a month after the first severe quake struck Tashkent. Two other quakes hit the city of 1,100,000 persons May 10 and May 24.

MINOR SHOCKS STILL PLAGUE TASHKENT

Panic-Stricken Residents Flee 'Quake City

MOSCOW (UPI) — Thousands of panic-stricken Soviet citizens are fleeing the ancient Asian city of Tashkent in the wake of four violent earthquakes in less than a month, witnesses said today.

Travellers arriving here from the battered capital of the Soviet Uzbek Republic said the situation in Tashkent was deteriorating rapidly, despite official efforts to quell panic. Hospitals were filling up with heart cases and nervous breakdowns, they said.

The Kremlin has ordered a crash program to rebuild large sections of the city wiped out in quakes April 26 and May 10, 24th and 25th. Air service between Moscow and Tashkent also has been doubled and priority given to families who wanted to resettle elsewhere.

The returning travellers said Tashkent schools have been closed and children evacuated. Merchants have set up stands in the streets for fear a new series of violent shocks will bring the roofs of their shops tumbling down on them, the travellers reported.

But even as nervous refugees made their plans to leave Tashkent, minor earthquake continued to rumble through the city. Only older citizens are prepared to remain in Tashkent no matter what, the travellers said. The rest of the population has become increasingly panic-stricken, they said.

The first quake, which measured 7.5 on the 12-point Richter international scale, hit slumbering Tashkent on April 26, killing 10 persons, injuring 1,000 others and leaving more than 35,000 persons homeless.

Despite the attempts of Soviet officials to minimize reports of the death and destruction of this quake, witnesses from Tashkent said the casualty figures are probably much higher because the heavy masonry ceilings of thousands of homes collapsed on their sleeping occupants.

After the May 24 earthquake, Tass, the official Russian news agency, reported 40 ambulance calls in two hours after the tremor was first announced. Five calls were for injuries. Tass said, two to deliver babies and 33 were heart cases.

Foreign newsmen have been barred from travelling to Tashkent and have had to rely on reports from travellers just back from the city for details of the disasters.

Arthur Mayse

History will never mark the moment, but on Tuesday evening in Saanich municipal hall, a member of Greater Victoria School Board uttered what may well be the most significant declaration ever to emerge from that worthy if sometimes over-cautious body.

"We have to live within the rules," trustee Peter Bunn is quoted as saying, "but it looks like the rules should be changed."

As a general observation, this of Mr. Bunn's indicates a flexibility of mind which I heartily approve. Changing situations do call for changed rules in school boards as elsewhere; and the specific case which prompted Peter Bunn's remark is overdue for amendment.

This is the board's head-in-the-sand regulation governing the senior secondary student who, from preference or necessity, drives to his classes.

As matters stand, he is denied parking space for his car even on school grounds with room to spare. So he parks where he can, to the frequent irritation of housewives and municipal authorities, and to his own considerable inconvenience.

This particular aspect of the parking problem has been giving trouble for a good many years.

It is, in fact, one of our harder perennial, and the Tuesday clash between Saanich lands and planning committee and a school board delegation developed along what have become classic lines.

The municipality urged off-street parking at the rate of one space for each 10 students.

Speakers for the board retreated into a red tape jungle of rules, regulations, and conditions of provincial grants.

After a deal of tussling to and fro, the contest dragged to an inconclusive halt. Saanich agreed to remove, for the time being at least, an off-street parking clause from a zoning bylaw which will prepare the way for a new Reynolds Road secondary school. Further discussions are to be held.

Reeve Hugh Curtis and his councillors may well have had no other choice than to shelve their bid to move student cars into school territory where they belong. Still, I hope that they will be encouraged by trustee Bunn's wise words to try again for that parking lot.

There is, or should be, nothing sacred about a rule which has outlived its usefulness and certainly there is no virtue in preserving it as a relic to be tripped over. If it seems changing, by all means get busy and change it!

Most certainly, a school needs plenty of elbow room for physical education and student athletics; and to introduce off-street parking in the grounds allotted by early planners to some of our old red-brick monstrosities would be no easy task.

In others, of which Oak Bay secondary is one, there's room and to spare for student parking. Just as Saanich did this week, Oak Bay municipal council has sought to fetch student cars off the streets and into the school area, only to be knocked back by an unbudging board.

One factor in these refusals is, I suspect, a simple reluctance to break with tradition. In the good old days, boys didn't bring cars to school; why, then, should they insist on doing so today?

Well, tradition is dandy, until it gets in the way of necessary action. The young car-owner is a phenomenon of our times, whether we like it or not. For that matter, even in the era of the little red country school-house, I seem to remember the hitchhiking rack and lean-to shelter provided for the kids who came on ponies.

In most respects, Greater Victoria School Board performs a difficult service very well indeed, in years when a drastic population boom is compounding the complexities of its job.

In this vexed matter of student parking, though, the board is considerably behind its times and should amend its heirloom rule with no more delay than need be.

CURIOSITY is evident in the expression on both the faces of the Kwakiutl bear totem and Ontario visitor David J. Jamieson of Burlington. Mr. Jamieson isn't used to totems and the totem hasn't seen many tourists so far. It has just been erected and will be dedicated by Indians Saturday. Story of the bear will be told in authentic songs and dances.

Chief We Shakes Coming to Town For Totem Rites

Chief We Shakes and other members of the Kwakiutl Indian settlements of the northern coast will hold a solemn ceremony here Saturday.

Mayor A. W. Toone, chief of the big lodge on Pandora Ave. will take part too.

The event is the formal unveiling of the new Kwakiutl bear pole, a totem carved by Henry Hunt of Victoria, on the causeway at Belleville and Government.

Mrs. Hunt has arranged for Chief We Shakes (Charles H. Dudward of Port Simpson) and singers and dancers of the Indian settlement at Fort Rupert to be present.

A special visitor will be Henry Hunt's father, Johnnie Hunt, 84, who is coming from Kelsey Bay to sing at the "toem" warning.

COLORFUL EVENT

The colorful event is part of the provincial centennial program planned by the native Indian subcommittee headed by R. P. Clifton of Comox.

GROWING ROLE

Engineers Wanted Men In Hospital

Engineers are rapidly becoming indispensable members of surgical teams in hospital operating rooms, Health Minister Eric Martin said today.

He told the annual meeting of the Registered Nurses' Association in the Empress Hotel the new development stems from increasing use of electronic equipment.

"Although automation and computer-programming have produced miracles in business administration, I personally believe that the effect upon medical science will be even more profound," Mr. Martin said.

He cited by way of example a recent brain operation in New York when an electronics engineer was one of the 13-man surgical team.

"More than one dozen different electronic instruments were used in the successful completion of this particular operation," he said.

MODERN WARDS

"Such machines, some relatively simple and others incredibly complex, are but one indication of the increasing impact of modern technology upon medical science and the everyday functioning of a modern hospital."

Totems of similar style are being erected along the B.C. coast on a tourist route to be known as the Totem Route, which originally was referred to as Route of the Haida. There will be 20 poles in all along highways and at ferry terminals between Swartz Bay and Prince Rupert.

The Victoria ceremony takes place at 11 a.m.

Another pole is being erected in Saanich at the corner of Buie Street and the Trans-Canada Highway. Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich will unveil it Saturday, June 4. Both ceremonies are open to the public.

TAYLOR TELLS BUSINESS LEADERS:

Local Culture in Need of Boost

The president of the University of Victoria today urged city business leaders to support the arts in Victoria.

Speaking to the Rotary Club of Victoria, Dr. Malcolm Taylor said the arts in this city are progressing with "extraordinary difficulty."

"Some people think that the arts are only for a few and that the few should support them."

"This is not true, for the level of artistic development is what distinguishes life from existence, what transforms a city of mediocrity into a city of excellence, what transforms a city of dullness into a city of excitement."

"I urge members of this club to ask themselves what they can do to make this city famous for its symphony, its theatre and its art gallery."

CULTURAL CENTRE

Speaking specifically about the University, Dr. Taylor said it itself was a cultural centre.

Sussexvale Senior Guard In Swiftsure

The Pacific Maritime Command ocean-escort HMCS Sussexvale will serve as senior guard and patrol ship throughout the Swiftsure Race this weekend.

Under the command of Lt. Cmdr. Fred Crickard of Victoria, the warship will be in the Inner Harbor Friday evening to take part in pre-race festivities. The ship will be dressed for the occasion with pennants and flags.

Early Saturday morning the Sussexvale will proceed to the starting line at Brochie Ledge and fire the starting gun.

The ship will guard the more than 80 yachts participating and relay hourly progress reports to shore headquarters of the race committee.

HIDDEN in that cedar log in the sling is the Bear Totem. It took months of carving by Henry Hunt at Thunderbird Park to expose the bear. The log was donated by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company Ltd. Henry's skill came largely from his famed predecessor, the late Mungo Martin.

Health Board Pulout Under Debate by City

Times Legislative Reporter

Victoria City Council today was expected to consider serving six months notice that it will pull out of the Metro Health Board.

Health Minister Eric Martin confirmed the possibility was discussed at a meeting of regional civic leaders and himself Wednesday but he was reluctant to give details.

Mr. Martin denied a rumor that he proposed Victoria withdraw from the board so that a complete reorganization of the controversy-racked co-operative scheme could be undertaken.

He said the idea was raised by others at the meeting. "They suggested it," he said in an interview.

"I said if they had to decide to do such a thing that it was their prerogative."

"They brought up the section having to do with this six-month clause and we discussed it."

LOSE SUBSIDIES

The health board was set up as an ad hoc arrangement by former city manager C. C. Wyatt when efforts to establish an autonomous and fully-fledged health board failed because Saanich and the outlying areas were afraid they would lose their current heavy provincial health subsidies.

Under the Wyatt compromise, the various public health organizations—in each of the municipalities and the provincial service, agreed to pool their staff and split overhead costs. Ever since, there has been friction between various components of the pool but these have been kept under control. However, some public controversy has broken out between the board's chief medical health officer Dr. John Whitbread and City Hall which pays his salary.

NO SPECULATION

Mr. Martin refused to speculate on what he would do if the board should break up through a city withdrawal.

Ald. Lily Wilson, a longtime member of the board representing the city, spent most of the morning at the Parliament Buildings closeted with one of the lawyers in the attorney-general's department—but she avoided an interview.

Earlier this year the majority of city aldermen staunchly denied Victoria had any intention of pulling out of the metro health organization.

Polled by telephone the aldermen stated that if there was any move afoot indicating withdrawal by Victoria they had not heard of it and that should such a proposal be made they would vote against it.

SLOWDOWN

The consensus at that time was that Victoria's withdrawal would be a retrograde step.

There is no indication as to what brought the change of mind but it is believed that the city feels the threat of withdrawal the only way to bring matters to a head.

ALASKA BLEW OUT THE FLAME THAT GAVE US HOT WEDNESDAY

We can blame it on Alaska.

Weatherman Bill Mackie says today's nasty weather came to us from the North Pacific and Alaska.

Quite a change from Wednesday's maximum high of 71 was this morning's rain shower and cold wind.

Like the Big Type? Fat Look in Sight

There's good news for telephone book squinters—larger type.

B.C. Telephone's Victoria district manager E. L. Mallett today said larger lettering will be a feature of the 1966 directories which come out in December.

This paragraph provides a sample of the type now used, which most people read with their fingers as much as their eyes. Jam easter and easter-hand home fixt men soon leave the paste smudged and sticky.

A new type face represents a major expense and a dramatic growth in the size of the directory.

It will cost $35,000 to reset the directory and future issues will cost $18,000 more than the present issues.

A total of 750,000 lines must be reset. There are about 63,000 listings in the white pages.

This means each book will be 17 per cent heavier than present books. This will require using an additional 246,000 pounds of paper.

Where there are now 144 pages, the new phone book will have 208. And for the first time, there will be an index included for the yellow pages.

600-Mile Coal Pipeline May Follow Japan Pact

A crash-program study is under way to determine feasibility of building a pipeline to move up to 18 million tons of coal each year almost 600 miles across the southern end of the province.

Commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner revealed today the pipeline study and the immense scope of the contracts now under negotiation with Japanese steel interests which could see up to $100 million of Fernie coal shipped across the Pacific annually.

Besides the tremendous traffic, the contracts would prompt development of the province's first modern deep-sea jetty—probably just outside the present Vancouver harbor—as well as construction of either a pipeline or major expansion of railway facilities.

PIPELINE IN USE

Coal is being moved now through a 100-mile pipeline in midwestern United States.

If one is built in B.C. it would carry crushed coal in solution through a one or two-foot pipe across three mountain ranges from the mines of Crow's Nest Industries Ltd. at Natal—near by the U.S.-Alberta corner of the province—to the lower mainland coast with several pumping stations providing lift.

Mr. Bonner said that although Crow's Nest is trying to complete negotiation of a contract with Japanese steel interests for supplying two million tons of coal annually, this is only a preliminary deal.

"The actual range is between six and eight million tons a year," he said.

SIDES WITH FIRM

Mr. Bonner appeared to side with Crow's Nest in its dispute with the Canadian Pacific Railway—which "is asking an unreasonably high freight rate for hauling the coal to Vancouver."

The coal company has applied to the province for a charter to build a spur line from Natal to Eureka, Mont., so it can ship via U.S. rail lines and docks in the event it cannot reach an agreement with the CPR.

Mr. Bonner Wednesday said his department was trying to resolve the dispute and several alternatives were under study.

This morning he revealed the pipeline, estimated to cost $30 million, was one of the alternatives.

He said technical studies are being pushed here on the pipeline's feasibility and the Japanese companies are co-operating with a similar study on the feasibility of reconstructing the coal "slurry"—crushed material extracted

Ask The Times

Q. What cities will get a franchise in the expanded National Hockey League? C.R.

A. The Governors of the NHL announced this spring that the league will expand to Los Angeles, San Francisco, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and St. Louis in the fall of 1967.

Q. I saw some chickens with pastel-colored head feathers at the Victoria Exhibition last week. Were they natural colors? A. An exhibition director reports the colors were dyed. The chickens involved had naturally white head feathers.

OPEN HOUSE AT PAT BAY AIRPORT

Navy to Show Off Powerful Air Arm

The public will be given a chance to see the armed forces at work next month.

Their first opportunity comes a week on Saturday when the navy's VU-33 air squadron holds open house at Pat Bay Airport.

Between 1 p.m. and 4:30, visitors can tour the base to see a variety of aircraft on display.

In addition they will be treated to a fire-fighting display and a fly-past of planes from the VU-33 squadron, VS-880, and RCAF units from Comox.

A week later, on June 11, it's Armed Forces Day in Victoria.

Starting 1:30 p.m., bands, floats and some 500 personnel from all three services will begin a parade from The Bay to Beacon Hill Park.

With the parade over, the public will be able to watch

special displays at Clover Point.

Among these will be a mock periscope through which they can get a "Captain's eye view" of the surrounding area and television monitors enabling them to watch naval divers at work underwater a short distance off-shore.

The navy will also feature a torpedo display while the army features a field command headquarters, complete with displays of ammunition, an industrial safety display and marching demonstrations.

A military band will perform throughout the afternoon.

Later on, aircraft of the RCAF and RCN will stage a fly-past.

Four navy ships, representing various classes of warships, will be anchored off the Point.

Meanwhile, open house will be held at HMC Dockyard, Canadian Forces Base Esquimalt and headquarters of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles at Work Point Barracks.

The day will end with a band concert in the bandshell at Beacon Hill Park.

CITY STUDYING TERMS

Hydro Offers Land Swap

B.C. Hydro has offered Victoria 48.9 acres of land in exchange for 31.6 acres required for the power company to string a power line across the southern most portion of Elk Lake Park.

Hydro has made several bids to obtain permission to build the new transmission line but has been rejected by city council on the grounds that the line, taking power to Langford, would ruin the park area.

The new land-swap bid was greeted with mixed reactions by council members in informal conference in the mayor's office Wednesday.

Parks administrator Herbert Warren pointed out that though the offer sounded fine on the surface the land being talked about differed widely in price.

"Our land (the southern part of the park) is worth four or five times the value of the land Hydro is offering in exchange," he said.

City council will take a closer look at the offer before giving Hydro a final answer.

VICTORIA BACKS
SWIMMING POOL

Victoria will back the Colwood Metehosin bid to build a Centennial project swimming pool under the auspices of the Capital Regional Board.

The two districts, lacking the organized authority to build the pool, have twice asked the regional board to lend its blessing to the project and have twice been rejected.

Main objection to the proposal that the regional group accept the responsibility — on paper — was that the board was established to acquire parkland for the regional district not sponsor individual efforts.

Colwood and Metehosin had pleaded that without an organized and duly recognized government body to back their effort the pool could not be built. They had also stated that the board would in no way be responsible for building costs or operating losses.

SUPPORT BID

Following an informal meeting of city council in the mayor's office Wednesday afternoon Mayor A. W. Toone said the city would support the bid of the rural communities.

Other business discussed during the informal gathering included a resolution the city will place before the Vancouver Island Municipalities annual meeting in Campbell River Friday.

Victoria will be asking other municipalities to support a united resolution for presentation to the Union of British Columbia Municipalities which will request the provincial government to consider the use of existing population figures when making per capita grants rather than the figures of the last official census.

1961 CENSUS

In the past per capita grants to municipalities have been based on 1961 census figures to the detriment of Victoria taxpayers.

Victoria will send its May 24 float to the Portland Rose Festival in June.

Earlier council had rejected a request from the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association to display the float in the parade. But a further request with the association promising to look after the transportation tab won city approval.

The cost of entertaining mayors and municipal officers from across Canada next month will come to $3,500. But the Inter-municipal Committee has agreed to share the cost.

The mayors and municipalities convention, to be held in Vancouver June 6-10, will wind up with a one day tour of Victoria and surrounding districts.

Emergency Debate on Seaway Tolls

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons opened an emergency debate today on a proposed 10-per-cent increase in shipping tolls on the St. Lawrence Seaway, with opposition parties expressing sharp criticism.

In a rare procedure, an opposition motion to adjourn the Commons' regular business for the day was ruled admissible by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

Griffith to Defend Against Archer

NEW YORK (AP)—Emile Griffith will defend his recently won middleweight boxing championship against Joey Archer of New York at Madison Square Garden July 13, in a 15-round bout, it was announced today.

Astor Stable Sold to American

LONDON (AP)—The blood-stock stable of the late Lord John Astor, one of Britain's most successful race horse breeders, was sold to an American today for an undisclosed sum.

William M. Hackman, of Middleburg, Va., bought the stable of about 70 horses—26 horses in training, 19 brood mares, 15 yearlings and a number of foals.

Ship Inquiry
Set Up

LONDON (UPI)—The Labor government today set up a special court of inquiry to study merchant seamen's working conditions in an effort to halt the crippling 11-day-old maritime strike.

Labor Minister Ray Gunter told Parliament the court of inquiry, headed by Lord Pearson, will begin work immediately. Both employers and the National Union of Seamen (NUS) promised full co-operation.

Gunter's statement came a few hours after he met leaders of both sides in separate, private sessions.

Stern Warning
Issued

LONDON (AP)—James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, stepped into the British seamen's strike today with a stern warning of the economic consequences.

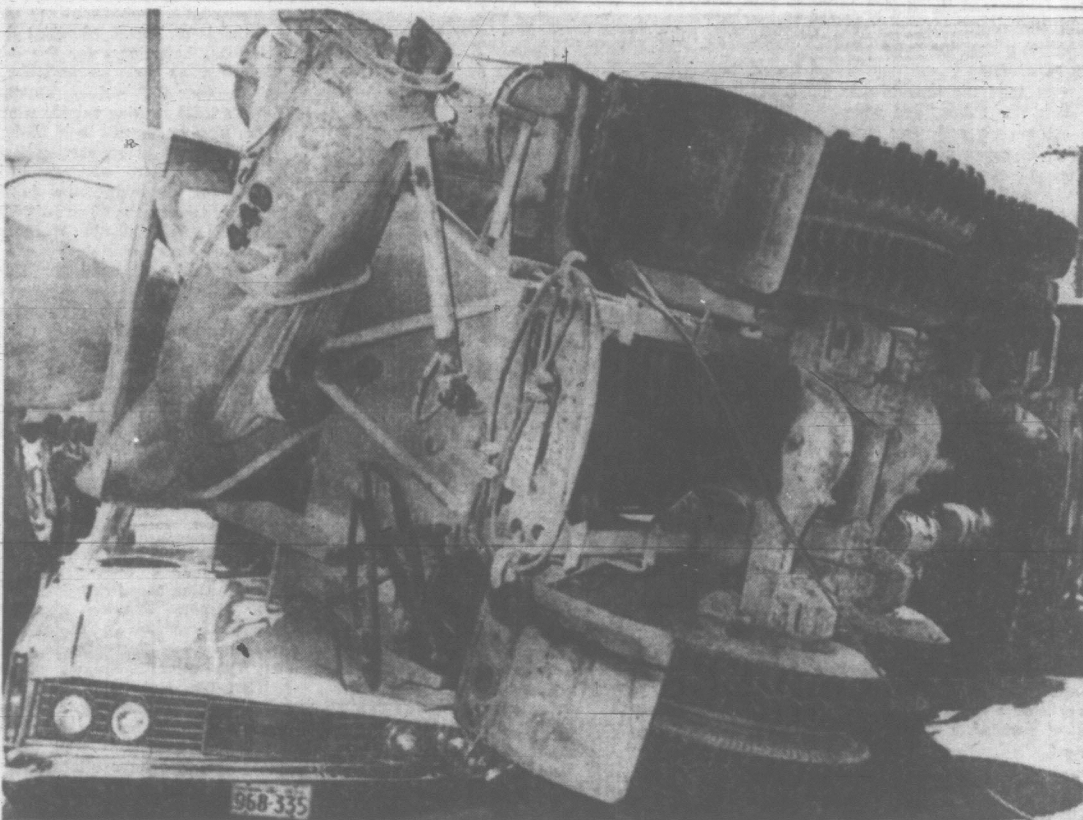

Callaghan, speaking in the Commons, said the strike is setting back the time when Britain will be able to end its balance-of-payments deficit.

"I say to this house and to those engaged in the dispute that high wage increases in 1966 mean nothing but inflation."

"Hardly a day passes when I do not get advice that I should so manipulate the economy as to create widespread inflation and therefore unemployment."

"I reject the advice. The government has made its choice—it is to stand firm on full employment, moderate wage increases, and to push up productivity."

Wide Region Blacked Out
When Helicopter Cuts Line

VANCOUVER (CP)—A helicopter hit a 230,000-volt power line 120 miles north of here today, blacking out sections of north-central British Columbia.

U.S. Areas
Darkened
By Surge

PORTLAND (AP)—A helicopter that crashed today into a power line in B.C. caused power failure more than a 1,000 miles away in Southern California and Arizona.

The Bonneville power administration said that when the helicopter cut a B.C. Hydro line between Bridge River and Kelly Lake, a huge supply of power was suddenly surplus.

It surged into the Bonneville lines of northern Washington state, flashed across Oregon and into Southern California.

A California Edison Co. line to Arizona with a light relay setting kicked out. Moments later a slightly heavier relay setting, that had allowed the surge south into California, cut open a switch between Klamath Falls, Ore., and Cottonwood, Calif.

Load dispatchers realigned the current flow and the Klamath Falls-Cottonwood relay was closed within four minutes of the interruption. The relay into Arizona was resumed in 11 minutes, Bonneville reported.

RACING
Pages 2, 11Producers Asked
To Suspend
Strike Threat

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC board of directors should re-examine the dismissal of the hosts of the television program This Hour Has Seven Days, Stuart Keate recommended today.

Mr. Keate, on leave of absence from his post as publisher of The Vancouver Sun to look into the producer-management clash over the program, made this the first of four recommendations for resolving the dispute.

The others:

- The Commons broadcasting committee, which has been examining the same dispute for more than a month, should move to other considerations to avoid "further escalation of hostilities."

- The government should produce as soon as possible its white paper after consideration of the Fowler committee report on broadcasting and refer it to the Commons committee.

- The producers' association should suspend its strike threat over the Seven Days issue "pending a procession through the foregoing procedure."

Mr. Keate makes it clear that he expects the CBC directors—and not just CBC President Alphonse Ouimet—to play an active role in finding some accommodation with the producers.

Mr. Keate states the producers and CBC management had agreed on a formal process that would avoid in future an incident such as the one that triggered the current dispute-firing of the hosts of the popular Sunday night show.

"But he said Ouimet steadfastly refused to make the agreement retroactive or personally to review the dismissals."

MANHUNT IN BRITAIN

Convicts Escape
As Feathers Fly

FORTSMOUTH, England (Reuters)—Police scoured the south of England today for five dangerous convicts who escaped from a police bus Wednesday.

Nine convicts overpowered guards and broke free while being driven from a court hearing in nearby Winchester to top-security Parkhurst prison on the Isle of Wight. Four were recaptured Wednesday night.

The home office said that 13 prisoners were being driven from Winchester to Parkhurst one of the men suddenly shouted "right" and the men attacked and overpowered six prison guards.

The nine, some of them handcuffed together, dashed from the bus.

One witness said they crashed through a hedge, knocked over a chicken coop, then disappeared in a flurry of feathers and squawking chickens.

WERE IN CIVIES
The men were wearing civilian clothes for their court appearance. They testified in a case in which one prisoner was charged with wounding another.

The fugitives were serving sentences ranging from five to 10 years for crimes including shooting, robbery with violence and assault.

Two RAF helicopters soon began swooping low over woods and fields in the area.

Two were captured after being chased by policemen and a 19-year-old mechanic through fields and over farm fences. At one point, the youth hit one of the fleeing men with a brick.

The mechanic caught up with the other and stood over him, brandishing a wrench until police came to take the prisoner away.

Big Baskets
Foil U.S.
Bomb Raids

TOKYO (AP)—Chinese reporters travelling in South Viet Nam said today the Americans cannot disrupt the Viet Cong supply lines despite repeated bombings.

The New China news agency quoted them as saying:

"Arms, ammunition and food supplies are being brought to the troops in the field day and night in big baskets on human backs along mountain trails, on bicycles, in ox-carts or captured trucks along jungle paths, or in junks through the cobweb of reefs."

"When American planes wing over, these streams of people and vehicles vanish into the jungle without a trace . . . when Americans succeed in cutting one line of communication . . . two or three new lines are quickly opened up by this unfatigued transport corps."

Economic Crisis
Facing Zambia

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP)—An order by white-supremacist Rhodesia that its landlocked neighbor, Zambia, must pay in advance and in hard cash for rail traffic through the breakaway British colony went into effect Wednesday.

The move threatened Zambia, major copper producer and exporter, with economic paralysis.

The railway system is jointly owned by Zambia and Rhodesia, which declared independence of Britain last Nov. 11 in a crisis over British insistence on eventual rule by the colony's overwhelming African majority.

President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia has said a case was being prepared for submission to the International Court at The Hague.

Panic-Stricken Residents Flee Quake City

MOSCOW (UPI)—Thousands of panic-stricken Soviet citizens are fleeing the ancient Asian city of Tashkent in the wake of four violent earthquakes in less than a month, witnesses said today.

Travellers arriving here from the battered capital of the Soviet Uzbek Republic said the situation in Tashkent was deteriorating rapidly, despite official efforts to quell panic. Hospitals were filling up with heart cases and nervous breakdowns, they said.

The Kremlin has ordered a crash program to rebuild large sections of the city wiped out in quakes April 26 and May 10, 24th and 25th. Air service between Moscow and Tashkent also has been doubled and priority given to families who wanted to resettle elsewhere.

The returning travellers said Tashkent schools have been closed and children evacuated. Merchants have set up stands in the streets for fear a new series of violent shocks will bring the roofs of their shops tumbling down on them, the travellers reported.

But even as nervous refugees made their plans to leave Tashkent, minor earth shocks continued to rumble through the city. Only older citizens are prepared to remain in Tashkent no matter what, the travellers said. The rest of the population has become increasingly panic-stricken, they said.

The first quake, which measured 7.5 on the 12-point Mercalli international scale, hit slumbering Tashkent on April 26, killing 10 persons, injuring 1,000 others and leaving more than 35,000 persons homeless.

Despite the attempts of Soviet officials to minimize reports of the death and

FREEDOM CEREMONY

Guyana Rivals Weep, Embrace

GEORGETOWN (AP)—Floodlights lit up the midnight sky Wednesday night and 50,000 Guyanese cheered as the five-colored flag of Guyana went up in place of the Union Jack, signalling independence for another British colony.

Prime Minister Forbes Burnham, black and the red, white, black and green flag was hoisted.

Former prime minister Cheddi Jagan, Marxist opponent of Burnham, appeared at the ceremony and to general surprise embraced his successor.

Jagan and his people's progressive party are boycotting all ceremonies aside from the flag-raising and the opening of the first independent Parliament. His Chicago-born wife, Janet, refused to attend the ceremony Wednesday night.

JAM THE STREETS

Georgetown, which appeared sleepy earlier this week, came alive with thousands jamming the streets, dancing, cheering and drinking rum. The holiday was expected to run through the weekend and Monday, which is a religious day.

Flag-raising ceremonies took place simultaneously in every town and village of the new nation on the northern coast of South America. They marked the end of 385 years of British, Dutch and French rule.

Guyana becomes the 23rd member of the British Commonwealth. The Duke and Duchess of Kent represented the Queen at the ceremony in Georgetown.

Operators Free To Set Own Gas Price

A number of Victoria service station operators have raised the price of gasoline one cent a gallon since going off consignment sales contracts.

One dealer estimated nearly 100 per cent of Victoria dealers had dropped consignment selling since alternative financing was offered by the major oil companies last fall.

As a result, the local dealer has been free to set his own gasoline price, and many have boosted the price of regular gas from 41.9 to 42.9 cents a gallon.

KEEP SAME PRICE

Some dealers contacted today were surprised that others had altered the retail price and could see no immediate prospect of doing likewise themselves.

"Not unless the competition warrants," one man said. "I can't see it as long as most are down."

But at the same time the dealers expressed the desire to regain the profit margin they had before a gasoline price war three years ago.

At that time the margin was 8 1/2 cents per gallon, and when the smoke cleared this was dropped to seven cents, mostly through oil company guarantee as a result of consignment contracts.

Consignment meant that no matter what happened to the price of gasoline at the retail level, the oil companies paid a set margin to dealers and retained ownership of the gasoline until the dealers were able to pay for it. That entitled the companies to set the retail price.

The consignment policy has since been abandoned and the action was backed by the Morrow royal commission investigating gas prices.

An Imperial Esso spokesman said an estimated 50 per cent of dealers in the Victoria area had gone off consignment.

The spokesman and local Esso dealers denied a suggestion that prices were boosted to cover the cost of running a promotional contest.

They agreed the contest was costing a nominal one cent per card issued with each gasoline purchase, which is no more than routine promotional expense.

A Shell Oil contest was costing dealers five times as much for each contest envelope issued to purchasers.

But a Shell dealer said his increased sales had boosted his monthly profit by about $200.

Any increase in the price of gasoline could not be attributed to the contest, he felt. It was a direct result of dealer independence through going off consignment.

The contest was being used as a scapegoat, he felt.

"I don't think contests are necessary," said another dealer. "They cost either John Public or the dealer."

A Shell dealer said because of abuse of the contest by some customers, his station increased its price.

MARKUP WIPED OUT

"We found we had people coming in to buy as little as a gallon of gasoline and demanding a contest envelope. The five cents this envelope cost us almost entirely wiped out our markup on the sale. It was killing us."

A Shell Oil spokesman said most dealers had found it to their advantage to enter the contest promotion, which is voluntary.

If they found it a burden they could withdraw, he said.

New Westminster Group Entertains Silver Threads

Victoria Silver Threads were entertained Wednesday afternoon by the 40-voice Century House Glee Club from New Westminster.

All the chorists are old-age pensioners of 65 years and over, but their singing was vigorous and inspiring and drew loud applause from an audience of around 300.

"This is our last concert of the season," said MC Don Gray, "but we shall continue our Wednesday afternoon sing-song every Wednesday until the end of June."

Mr. Gray expressed thanks to Arthur H. Hickford, deputy MC at the weekly concert.

The Silver Threads choir, directed by Mrs. Dorothy Cuthbert, will present Songs of the British Isles in the McPherson Theatre Friday at 2 p.m.

 Callaghan was referring to the governments' price-and-income policy which seeks to peg wage increases to a maximum of three per cent.

The Trades Union Congress tried Wednesday without success to settle the dispute, which had made idle 558 ships and 16,132 men.

George Woodcock, general secretary of the congress, predicted the stoppage would last another month.

"By then," he said, "the situation will be very serious."

The 65,000-member National Union of Seamen is striking for a 40-hour week package deal which amounts to a 17-per-cent increase on the current basic wage of $15 ($45) for a 36-hour week.

 to change his Viet Nam policy. In Saigon U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge called the sacking a "distressing act."

"The destruction of a library and cultural centre is a distressing act," he said in a statement.

Oil Fouls Beaches
 ROME (AP)—Swimming was banned along some of Rome's most popular beaches today as waves of crude oil drifted ashore from the damaged Belgian tanker Fina Norge.

WAC Warns Against Bargaining Too Hard

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier W. A. C. Bennett has appealed for restraint in a series of bitter labor-management battles which he says are threatening to "take the bloom off the boom" in British Columbia.

The premier's warning in Prince George Wednesday follows reports from provincial government sources that many public projects will be curtailed if the province is crippled by major strikes this year.

"If either side bargains too hard and the resulting strike or lockout costs many men their jobs, then the people will blame them, and I as premier will blame them," said Mr. Bennett.

Earlier Labor Minister Leslie Peterson announced appointment of Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz of the B.C. Supreme Court to investigate the dispute between 25,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) and 120 timber companies.

Mr. Justice Nemetz said he will arrange for meetings between IWA representatives and officials of Forest Industrial Relations, bargainers for the employers, as soon as possible.

In other B.C. strikes, Vancouver's 1,500 striking outside workers plan to discuss their 20-day-old walkout at a meeting Sunday, but there appears little hope of dissolving the battle lines between the Civic Employees Union (Outside Workers) and city council.

What started as a thin film of dust and debris on Vancouver streets a week ago has reached drifting proportions when sea breezes waft through the grimy downtown area.

The outside workers want a 70-cent-an-hour raise over three years on their basic minimum of $2.28 1/2. They have rejected a city offer of 28 1/2 cents over two years.

In suburban North Vancouver, representatives of 700 striking outside and inside workers reached an impasse with civic officials.

The workers left their jobs three days ago in a wage dispute but have since allowed dental technicians, court stenographers, health inspectors and social workers to return to work.

Will the short skirt get shorter?

Where did the short skirt come from in the first place—and where is it going? A group of "experts" tackle these questions (and lots of others about "kooky" teen-age clothes) in this month's Reader's Digest. Is the short skirt a sign of rebellion, as a fashion photographer claims, like "spitting in someone's eye" ... or are the sociologists right when they say it's just a reaction to the mixed-up times we're living in? His government has refused to accept the Rhodesian payment regulation.

The first result showed today when Zambia's copper-mining companies said copper no longer is being shipped by rail through Rhodesia for export and they might be unable to keep to contract terms.

The two mining companies, Roan Selection Trust and Anglo-American, officially declared force majeure—a legal provision in their contracts with consumers.

The railway is the main outlet for the bulk of Zambia's copper.
